WHY AMERICA ALWAYS WINS.

THE YACHT RACE.
When the gracious breezes blew,
How the fleet Columbia flew!
How she spread her wings and scampered o'er the foam!
How the British sailors sighed,
When they saw her split the tide,
For they knew they'd never carry our cup back home!

In yacht racing, as in war, science, art and pugilism, America is pre-eminent.

We have got so accustomed to looking for the best of everything that failure would gall us to the utmost.

Prof. Sharkey and Prof. Jeffries, who will do battle for the heavyweight honors of the world early in November, have invented a new style of pugilism. Knowing ones call it facial pugilism. These two artists have posed for a series of pictures especially for the Sunday Post-Dispatch, showing:

(1) How I will do Sharkey, by Prof. Jeffries.

(2) How I will do Jeffries, by Prof. Sharkey.

These pictures—there are six of each—will prove not only amusing, but instructive. They afford an excellent character study.

See them next Sunday.

Have you ever stopped to consider the civilizing power of beefsteak?

Philosophers contend that man is only a savage, with an inconsiderable coating of veneer, and that the only thing necessary to cause him to return to his native state is to turn him loose to slaugher his fellow man.

Yet civilized nations are the best fighters, because they have better fighting tools at their command. It is also noted that meat-eating nations are the best fighters. Look at beef-eating John Bull! Hasn't he been fighting ever since the spring of the Year 1?

In opposition to this fact it is pointed out that the Chinese are weak as a people because they eat rice.

The American people, like the English, are great meat-eaters; and when were the Americans ever bested in any kind of a fight?

Some valuable points in this connection will be brought out in an article entitled "Beefsteak as a Civilizer," written by a distinguished American especially for the next Sunday Post-Dispatch.

The reputation of St. Louis as the home of beauty has long been recognized. This reputation has been enhanced greatly by the action of the Sunday Post-Dispatch in publishing each week halftone pictures of beautiful St. Louis women. This practice, long continued, has added much to the fame of the city and its fair inhabitants.

Next Sunday another bevy of beauties will be presented. In this connection a group of strikingly beautiful Illinois girls will be shown, and admirers will be given an opportunity to compare them with the girls at home.

The music-loving public has become deeply interested in the Sunday Post-Dispatch Album of Popular Songs, the first number of which was issued three weeks ago. The fourth number, by one of the most efficient song writers of the day, will be issued next Sunday. The title is, "You'll Have to Transfer."

Don't miss it, or your album will be incomplete when the tenth and last number is sent forth.

Remember, one song to each purchaser of the Sunday Post-Dispatch.

"Of the making of many books there is no end," remarked an ancient seer. He might have said the same thing of speculation in regard to politics. Politicians are like the white wings of the Columbia, they never grow weary. They are always in the field. Right now they are indulging in many speculations as to the probable identity of the next candidates for the Vice-Presidency.

The possibilities for speculation in this line are well-night boundless. The choice of a Vice-Presidential nominee invariably depends upon the location of the nominee for President. The coming Sunday Post-Dispatch will reveal some valuable facts in this connection, which will be of interest to men of all parties.

See next Sunday's halftones.

The original Puck was first printed in St. Louis. The office used to be at Seventh and Pine streets. After it failed here it was revived in New York. The first editor of the paper will have some interesting stories to tell of his early connection with the paper in the next Sunday Post-Dispatch.

The old home of Jefferson Davis in Mississippi is about to be sold for a certain purpose, which will result in good to many men, and Mrs. Davis will move to New Orleans. Details will be found in the next Sunday Post-Dispatch.

One of the most highly educated negroes in the United States, a leader among his people and a power in his church, has said to the Sunday Post-Dispatch: "The negro has reason to hate the white man."

He hopes the United States will hold the Philippine Islands, "so that the Government will have just that much more race trouble on its hands."

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—Columbia wins to-day's race, making three out of five of the international series, and keeps America's cup. Her victory over Shamrock has been complete at all points of sailing. She is the better boat, has the better skipper and the better crew.

Shamrock was two-thirds of a mile behind at the finish.

Columbia beats Shamrock in actual time 6 minutes and 18 seconds. Giving Columbia the 16 seconds which Shamrock was forced to allow her on account of the difference in their measurements, Columbia beat Shamrock 6 minutes and 34 seconds.

HOW THE RACE WAS RUN

Movements of the Yachts Over the Course as Reported by Trained Observers.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—The wind was blowing 15 miles an hour south by west, and the sea was lumpy when the Columbia and Shamrock sailed out to Sandy Hook Lightship for the third race of the series over a 15-mile straightaway course and return.

Shamrock turned up her green shining line in the sunlight, and pushed her nose through the foam as if the breeze had been made expressly for her. Columbia sat up straighter and looked a trifle more dignified, but both sped along in a manner that spoke well for a much closer contest than any preceding one if the stiff wind should hold out. The yachts jumped out of the smooth water of the Hook into the choppy sea under their own sail, as if rejoicing at their ability to move so rapidly.

The Shamrock had her mainsail and jib set when she started out, and Columbia had up her mainsail only. Even with that small amount of sail they came tearing along toward the starting point through the choppy sea, and driving it from their smooth sides in masses of white foam.

Nearing the line, Shamrock, with the aid of her extra lead sail, outfooted Columbia, and got down a minute before her. The lee rails of the yachts were awash.

At 10:04 the committee boats arrived at

COLUMBIA'S MASCOT.

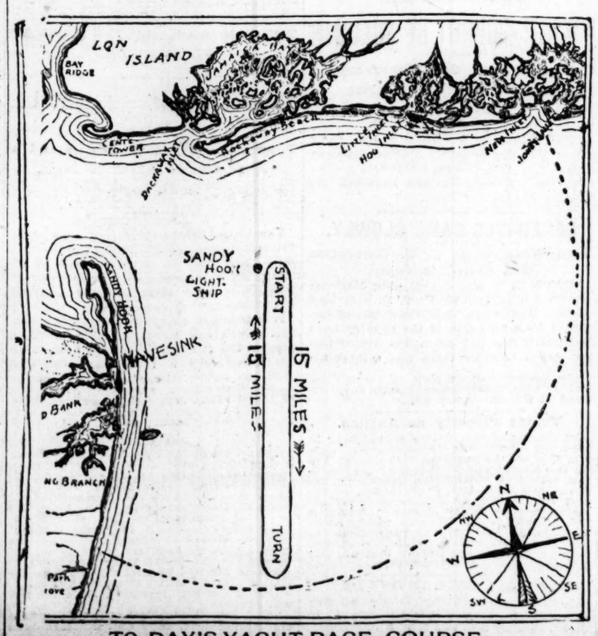

Mrs. C. Oliver Iselin is the Columbia's mascot. She is the only woman who has ever sailed on a 90-foot sloop in the great international races for the America's cup.

She has sailed on the Columbia during all her races or attempted races.

She sailed on the Defender when she whipped the Valkyrie, three years ago.

Mrs. Iselin is the wife of C. Oliver Iselin, the managing owner of the Columbia.

It requires a lot of pluck for a woman to sail on a monster sloop in a race. Remember that there is not a handrail to catch hold of on deck. When the boat goes to windward in a strong breeze the deck leans over at an angle of 45 degrees, and the lee side is buried under the rushing, boiling water. Every man has to lie down to windward in order to keep out of the water and to trim the boat. The boom flies across the deck with a force that would sweep 100 men into the sea. If the mast were to break it might kill every soul on board.

TO-DAY'S YACHT RACE COURSE.

SHOT A BURGLAR AT BENTON.

St. Louisan's Experience Early Friday Morning.

WAS AROUSED BY HIS WIFE.

P. H. FELKER CREPT DOWNSTAIRS, RIFLE IN HAND.

He Waited at the Window and When the Nocturnal Visitor Was Within Two Feet of Him He Fired.

There is a burglar somewhere in St. Louis or St. Louis County with a bullet in his person. The bullet belongs to P. H. Felker of 2949 Mitchell avenue, Benton. Mr. Felker fired it into the person of the burglar early Friday morning. Mr. Felker is in the printing business at 1017 Lucas avenue.

There have been so many burglaries recently in Benton, Maplewood and Old Orchard that the people have become convinced that the work has been done by an organized band. The burglaries have led to increased watchfulness on the part of the residents and a condition of preparedness with reference to firearms.

That is why the burglar who called at the residence of Mr. Felker got away with a bullet and nothing else. Mrs. Felker supplied the watchfulness and Mr. Felker did the rest.

The residence of Mr. Felker is at the southeast corner of Mitchell avenue and McCausland road. It faces to the south. A porch extends across the front of the house and on the west side the depth of the front room. At the end of this porch is a window, opening into the library, which is a few feet wider than the parlor. Between the window and the inside corner of the porch there is just about room enough for the body of a man.

A little before 1 o'clock Friday morning Mrs. Felker, who was sleeping in an upstairs room, was awakened by a noise. She aroused her husband. He had a Winchester rifle standing in a closet near his bed. He procured this and crept downstairs.

He was as nearly noiseless as he could be, but about half way down one of the steps creaked. This was probably heard by the burglar, who was on the porch at the window.

In the hall Mr. Felker stooped down and make a survey of the parlor, library and dining room, and becoming satisfied that the robber was not in the house, he proceeded cautiously back to the library. As he entered this room he saw a shadow on the window at the end of the porch. He stood still and watched. It moved. The form of a man could be easily made out.

Mr. Felker moved nearer the window and saw that a man was crouching in the narrow space between the window and the corner of the porch. He crept up to the window and waited. Presently the burglar seemed to become convinced that the sound he had heard had not been made by the occupants of the house. He stepped carefully out of the corner until his body from the hips up was clearly outlined in the bright moonlight against the window.

Mr. Felker had brought the Winchester to his shoulder with the barrel almost against the window pane and was waiting. As soon as the body of the burglar was fully exposed he fired. The burglar was not more than two feet away from the muzzle of the weapon.

The man threw up his arms spasmodically, but did not fall. He ran off the porch and around the east side of the house, leaped over the back fence and ran north along the McCausland road toward Forest Park.

Mr. Felker went out into the yard and fired several shots in the air, which attracted two mounted policemen. They made a report of the occurrence, but it was suppressed at police headquarters.

The condition of the window pane shows that the weapon was held so close that it is almost certain the bullet found lodgment in the body of the burglar. The hole is the size of a dollar, showing that the muzzle of the gun was so close that the whole force of the concussion went through the glass.

Earlier in the night the residence of a man named Schotzman, four blocks north, was entered and money was taken from the pockets of Mr. Schotzman.

The deputy sheriffs at Clayton, the town marshals of all the suburban villages and all the officers of St. Louis County, assisted by the members of various vigilance committees, are searching the county for burglars.

No less than a dozen burglaries have been committed in St. Louis County recently in neighboring towns along the Suburban Railroad. It is estimated that the thieves secured more than $1000 in money, besides a large amount of clothing and jewelry. In several instances the clothing was thrown away and picked up on the sidewalk the next morning.

Information has been secured that will probably lead to the speedy capture of the negroes who robbed the home of John H. Crane of Glendale Wednesday morning. Deputy Sheriff Albert Autenreith has learned that two negroes boarded the Houseman line a few minutes after the burglary was committed and transferred to the Lindell at Forest Park. Conductor Graham was able to give an accurate description of the men. A number of papers, a bunch of keys and a pocket book, taken from Mr. Crane's house during the robbery, were found Friday morning scattered along the railroad between Mr. Crane's residence and the street.

Others who were made victims of the robber raids are: Charles Engleke of Maplewood, G. L. Eatherton of Flora avenue; Frank Hemmingway of Manchester; Dick Moore of Manchester; Hermann Walter of Barrett's Station and Wilson Hunt, J. P. Harris, J. C. Holmes, John Richarz, Thomas Wagner, John White and William S. Browner, all living near the scenes of the other robberies.

FIRST BATTLE OF THE WAR.

Boers in Strong Force Attack the British Position at Glencoe and are Repulsed, Losing Five Pieces of Artillery.

The Loss of Men Sustained on Either Side Not Reported to London.

GENERAL SYMONS WOUNDED.

THE ENGAGEMENT BECAME GENERAL AND BOERS WERE DRIVEN FROM THEIR POSITION.

GENERAL WHITE'S REPORT.

It Shows That a Determined Effort Is Being Made to Capture Glencoe, Dundee and Ladysmith.

LONDON, Oct. 20.—A special dispatch dated Glencoe, 8:25 this morning, announces that the Boer position had been captured after heavy fighting, during which five guns were taken, and that the Devonshire and Dorsetshire regiments are now engaging the Boers.

The War Office during the morning received a report that Gen. Symons was wounded during the engagement at Glencoe.

An unconfirmed report has been received that Boer artillery is shelling Dundee.

The War Office has received the following official dispatch from Ladysmith, filed at 3:30 this afternoon:

This from Glencoe: "We were attacked this morning at daylight by a force roughly estimated at 4000. They had placed four or five guns in position on a hill 5400 yards east of our camp, and they fired plugged shells. Their artillery did no damage. Our infantry formed for attack and we got our guns into position. After the position of the enemy had been shelled our infantry advanced to the attack and after a hard fight, lasting until 1:30 p. m., an almost inaccessible position was taken, the enemy retiring eastward. All the Boer guns have been captured. We can see our soldiers at the top of the hill. Our cavalry and artillery are still out.

"Gen. Symons is severely wounded. Our losses are heavy. They will be telegraphed as soon as possible."

A dispatch from Glencoe Camp says that Sir William Symons was wounded in the stomach and that Gen. Gate has assumed command.

It was reported in the House of Commons this evening that the British had captured 17 guns at Glencoe and that the cavalry were still pursuing the fleeing burghers, and that Gen. Symons' wound would prove fatal.

LONDON, Oct. 20.—The War Office has received the appended dispatch from Ladysmith, filed at 10:45a . m. to-day:

"The following advices from Glencoe camp just at hand: The King's Royal Rifles and the Dublin Fusileers are attacking a hill occupied by Boer artillery. They are within 300 yards of the position and are advancing under cover of our artillery, at about 2000 yards range. Scouts report that 9000 Boers are advancing on Hattingspruit. The Fifteenth Battery and the Leicester Regiment have gone to meet them. The Boers began shelling Glencoe Camp with heavy artillery at 5:30 this morning."

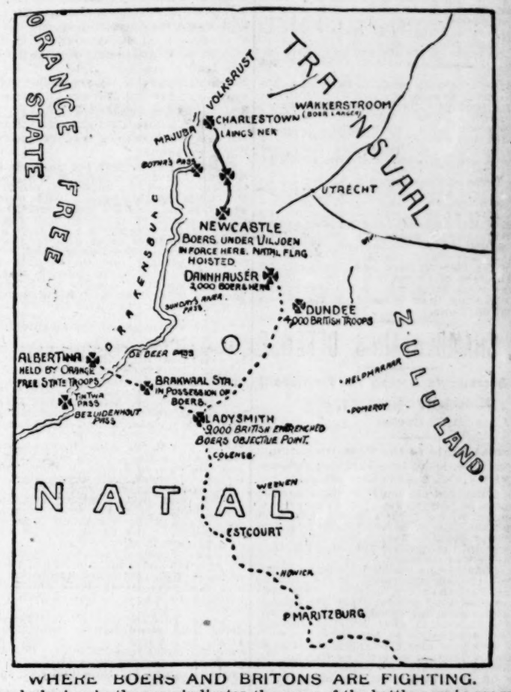

An official message was received from Glencoe, timed at 7:40 this morning, saying fighting was proceeding there and announcing that the Boers' strength was about 9000 men. The Boers, it appears, posted guns on a hill overlooking the town, opened fire on the camp, and the battle became general.

The Boers commenced descending the western passes on Tuesday and came in contact with our patrols yesterday. They continued to advance, halting for the night with their left flank at Besters Station; their center at Blue Bank and their right more retired.

At Acton Homes Lieut. Galway of the Natal Carbineers is missing and Trooper Spencer of the Natal Carbineers was slightly wounded.

Communication with Glencoe Junction was cut off at Elandslaagte, where they captured a goods train.

A Boer train is advancing over Beggarsberg Nek. Communication by telegraph is still open via Greytown.

WHERE BOERS AND BRITONS ARE FIGHTING.

The dark ring in the map indicates the scene of the battle now in progress. Glencoe and Acton Homes lie in this district.

The British forces under Gen. White and the Boers under Joubert and Calvert, now facing each other in the "Tongue of Natal," compare as follows:

British.		Boers.
At Ladysmith	9,000	Under Joubert 10,000
Dundee and Glencoe	4,000	Under Calvert 12,000
Total	13,000	Total 22,000

Dundee is strongly fortified, with 12 field pieces and 6 mountain guns. Ladysmith forts have 12 field guns. In all, Gen. White has 46 pieces of artillery at the threatened points.

ANALYSIS OF THE BATTLE

Based Upon the Official News Received From Gen. White, Commanding at Ladysmith.

LONDON, Oct. 20.—The reported Boer attack on the position at Glencoe was confirmed early to-day by official dispatches from Sir George Stewart White.

It appears that during the night the Boer artillery occupied a hill commanding the British camp and began dropping shells at daybreak in the direction of the British forces. The latter, under Gen. Sir William Penn Symons, promptly accepted the challenge, and moved to meet the invaders under cover of the British artillery, which appears to have been worked with such advantage as to quickly silence the enemy's batteries, enabling the infantry to carry the Boer position by a charge in which the Dublin Fusileers and the King's Royal Rifles are said to have specially distinguished themselves, the Fusileers capturing the first guns of the enemy taken in the present campaign.

Fortunately for the British, they are apparently strong enough to withstand a Boer force double their own, but in view of the fact that the railway was cut yesterday at Elandslaagt, evidently in anticipation of to-day's attack, it would have been impossible to send re-enforcements quickly from Ladysmith.

Gen. Symons seems to have been in the thick of the fight, as might have been expected. Confirmation of the report that he was wounded has been received, but just how seriously is not yet known here.

BEFORE THE BATTLE BEGAN

Movements of the Boers in Pushing Toward the British Position in North Natal.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.

Copyright, 1899, by the Press Publishing Company.

(The following cable dispatch from the Post-Dispatch's own correspondent in the field in Natal was delayed and censored by British military authorities.)

LADYSMITH, British Colony of Natal, Oct. 18.—The Post-Dispatch's special correspondent has just returned from the camp of the British troops.

Plainly battle is expected to-morrow. The newspaper correspondents were not permitted to pass the pickets in the neighborhood of the town, so it is impossible to give particulars about the movement of the troops here, although they are manifesting the greatest activity.

It is certain that the Boers of the Orange Free State have taken the initiative in the attack. It is reported that 2000 Orange Boers, with some artillery, are within seven miles of here.

The Boers are well informed by some "underground telegraph" of the movements of the British troops. Nor is there any doubt that the British scouts are in touch with the enemy.

The force of Transvaal Boers is not more than 13 miles from this place.

Three carbineers to-day brought in Dejager, a Dutch farmer near here, suspected of being a spy. I never saw a man so frightened. Several spies have been arrested near here.

The rumor that Helpmaker was captured is false. The Boers have not yet advanced beyond Ingagnie. If Helpmakaar should be captured it would not be by the main column of Transvaal Boers, but by Lucas Mayer, a subordinate commander, who, with his small command, is now probably passing through Fugitives' Drift, near Helpmakaar.

It is reported from Glencoe Camp that the British troops there have been under fire. A strong patrol of Boers was encountered eight miles from the camp and was repulsed, the British suffering no casualties.

Two Boers on bicycles, one of whom carried a white flag, carried a letter written by a British magistrate in Newcastle to a picket outside Glencoe. The letter, which was delivered by permission of Gen. Joubert, who had occupied Newcastle, stated all the British in the town were well.

VRYBURG HELD BY BOERS

The Town Is Said to Have Capitulated Last Sunday Night.

LONDON, Oct. 20.—The Cape Town correspondent of the Daily Mail, telegraphing at 10 o'clock Thursday night, says:

"Vryburg surrendered Sunday. To-night's dispatches from Kurunan, 90 miles west by south of Vryburg, state that the police have withdrawn from Vryburg; the town has surrendered to the Boers, the inhabitants fleeing in all directions, mostly toward Kurunan. When the police withdrew, the Cape Boers notified the fact to the enemy, thus inviting them to take possession. There was a fearful panic. The Sub-ish are wildly indignant at this scuttling."

A private message from Mafeking, undated, says:

"Right Monday. All right."

Messages from Kimberley, dated Oct. 17, say that the Boers still occupied their position at Spytzfontein. They were lifting cattle and devastating everything. An Englishman with a Free State permit, who was temporarily detained near Kimberley, reports that the Boers have large flocks and herds.

RAPID IN MOBILIZATION

Fully Ninety Per Cent of the British Reserves Have Joined the Colors.

LONDON, Oct. 20.—The mobilization is practically completed and it is said that more than 90 per cent of the reservists have rejoined the colors. This is considered eminently satisfactory.

The speed at which the army corps has been gotten together has excited the admiration of the German headquarters' staff, and they have sent a semi-official message of congratulation through the British Military Attache in Berlin to the service.

The London press regards this as a well deserved compliment, the papers pointing out that not only have the reservists responded splendidly, but the large majority of those who have reported are medically fit for service. In several cases the outgoing regiments contain a preponderance of reserves, most of them in the prime of manhood and men who have fought in India and in Egypt.

It is the aim of the War Office to send no man to South Africa unless he has at least a year's service. The only serious criticism apparently to be made regarding these thousands destined for the front is that the reserves are for the most part ignorant of the mechanism of the magazine rifle.

Efforts have been made to overcome this and to give the men practice with the Lee-Metford, but the time has been too short to do much. What effect this lack of familiarity with their own weapons will have upon the accuracy of the fire of the British can only be judged when the dead and wounded are gathered from the fields of battle.

The Duke of Connaught, accompanied by the Duchess and his daughters, inspected the Scots Guards to-day at Chelsea Barracks, after which he addressed the men on behalf of Her Majesty, congratulating them on their splendid appearance and wishing them a safe return to England.

Col. Arthur Paget replied and called for cheers for Her Majesty and for the Duke and Duchess of Connaught.

These were given with great gusto, the men elevating their helmets on the points of their bayonets.

MR. CHAMBERLAIN'S DEFENSE

The Secretary's Speech in Parliament Materially Weakens His Cause.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.

Copyright, 1899, by the Press Publishing Company.

LONDON, Oct. 20.—Chamberlain's defense of his policy and diplomacy in the House of Commons was disappointing in every aspect. He opened with a fierce personal attack on Philip Stanhope, who had challenged him to answer Stead's charges, and was called to order by the speaker for implying that Stanhope was dishonest.

Mr. Chamberlain claimed that the Jameson raid chapter was closed by the findings of the Parliamentary inquiry. This evasion excited loud protest from the opposition and gained increased credence for Mr. Stead's accusation that Mr. Chamberlain was an accomplice in the raid.

Mr. Stanhope also challenged Mr. Chamberlain to produce a letter written to Mr. Chamberlain before the Jameson raid inquiry by Mr. Hawkesley, the secretary of the British South African Co. Mr. Chamberlain refused to submit the letter to Mr. Stanhope, but offered, if he should be asked to do so, to show it to Harcourt or Bannerman, who, however, were both parties to the hushed-up raid inquiry.

The correspondent learns that this letter is a long document, containing specific proofs of the complicity of the Colonial Office in the Jameson raid, and threatening Mr. Chamberlain with exposure for denouncing his promoters in the House of Commons.

Bannerman refuses to accept Chamberlain's offer by asking for the letter, but Harcourt has not definitely replied so far.

Mr. Chamberlain's position was much weakened.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Judge Lacomb, in the United States Circuit Court, handed down a decision to-day dismissing the writ of habeas corpus in the case of former Capt. Oberlin M. Carter, who is under sentence of five years' imprisonment for conspiracy to defraud the Government in contracts. The decision was given in a lengthy opinion, which upholds the findings of the court-martial.

REFORMERS AFTER THE MAYOR.

Social Union Declares He Is Opposing Free Speech.

The Social Reborm Union is after His Honor with a sharp stick. It says he is trying to interfere with free speech.

At a meeting of the Union, held Thursday night, the following resolution, presented by Rev. Dr. J. W. Caldwell, who has charge of the North Broadway Social Settlement, was adopted:

Whereas, It is reported that Mayor Ziegenhein has refused to permit the Mormon evangelists permission to speak on the streets, and,

Whereas, We the members of the Social Reform Union believe in free spech and do not bliev that truth or religion can lose by free and full discussion;

Therefore, Be it resolved, that we ask for every man permission to speak his sentiments freely, and without hindrance.

SUGAR WORKS FIREMEN OUT.

Demand That Hours Be Shortened and Wages Increased.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PEORIA, Ill., Oct. 20.—The firemen at the sugar works walked out last night at 12 o'clock, forcing the plant to close down and throwing 800 men out of employment.

The firemen are well organized in this city and many employed in the distilleries have left their work, and unless the demands of the sugar works men are acceded to the prospects are that many factories will be shut down.

The firemen demand $2 a day for 8 hours' work. The sugar works offered the men $2.50 for 12 hours a day week days and 18 hours Sunday. The men refused the offer.

Terrible Crime of Two Mississippi Negroes.

POURED OIL ON FEATHER BEDS.

THE HELPLESS VICTIMS WERE TIGHTLY BOUND TOGETHER.

The Men Were Captured by a White Posse and the Leader Burned at the Stake, His Lieutenant Being Held.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 20.—The little village of St. Anne, Miss., about 200 miles from Memphis, has during the last two nights witnessed two shocking crimes. The first was a massacre, the second the work of vengeance. At St. Anne lives J. H. Grambell, an aged and highly respected farmer. His family consisted of himself, his wife, his daughter Sallie, 18 years old; Maud, 16 years old; his son Haywood, 12 years old, and a baby boy 3 years old. Thursday morning, long before daylight, Mr. Grambrell left his home with a load of cotton and drove to Canton.

Shortly after he left the sleeping family was awakened by a party of negroes, who, without a word of explanation, seized them, tied them tightly together with ropes and put them on the floor in the middle of one of the rooms of the Grambrell residence. Some of the murderers then took a huge feather mattress from one of the beds, while others produced cans of oil.

The ringleader told the terrified family that they were to be burned alive. The poor woman and the older boy fought desperately while they were being tied. They now begged for their lives and for the lives of the family, but the two daughters refused to ask aught of their captors. They died without a tremor.

After the feather mattress was thoroughly saturated with oil, it was fired. The thieves then ransacked the house and found under a hearth $186 in money.

At first it was not thought that the fire was the work of an incendiary. Investigation established the fact that the family had been murdered and the house fired. A posse was formed to scour the country. Before it left St. Anne it was discovered that Joe Lefiore, a negro who lived in the neighborhood and only a mile from the Grambrell house, had disappeared.

The posse started to find him.

Early last night Lefiore was captured several miles from the scene of the murder. At first he vigorously denied any knowledge of the crime, but he was unable to explain why he had left the vicinity so suddenly. Finally he confessed that he and Bob and Anderson Smith, two other negroes, had committed the crime. Bob and Anderson Smith were captured and brought to where Lefiore was held by a mob.

In the yard where the Grambrell residence had stood Lefiore was tied to a stake and burned. One person sent a merciful bullet into his body. The citizens stood about in grim silence while the flames crackled about his form and paid no heed to his screams.

Anderson Smith escaped from the mob while Joe Lefiore was being burned and has not yet been captured. Bob Smith was tied to another stake. Wood was piled about hom and a fire started. The negro loudly protested his innocence and after he had partly been burned the fire was raked away as some thought perhaps he could prove innocence. Lefiore had died accusing both.

THE STRINGENCY IN GOLD

Probable Result of the Cessation of the Export of Yellow Metal From the Transvaal.

LONDON, Oct. 20.—The London manager of the Bank of the South African Republic made the following statement to the Associated Press:

"When one considers the average weekly gold exports from the Transvaal to England, which you may estimate at from 400,000 pounds, to say nothing of a considerable amount that goes weekly to the continent, it is impossible to believe that the complete cessation of such a large amount will not create some stringency, especially as the only way to meet the increased British expenditure in South Africa is to ship out gold."

These conditions are keenly realized by the larger financial houses and throughout the week the Stock Exchange has been in a state of anxiety regarding the measure the Government will adopt to raise the necessary funds.

It is a curious fact that South African stocks have not slumped. In many cases they have even risen. This is probably due to the implicit belief of the average investor in the might of British arms and to the supposition that the mines will soon come under British control.

THEY RECOGNIZED DEWEY

The Admiral Heartily Cheered When He Took His Seat in a Washington Theater.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—Admiral Dewey went last night to see Francis Wilson in his burlesque on "Cyrano de Bergerac."

The audience did not know the Admiral was to be present, but as soon as the people sighted the hero of Manila they gave him an ovation.

During the play an interpelated topical verse on Dewey's victory and his Roman nose caught the house and its subject, and caused the audience to give another warm evidence of its feeling for the Admiral.

COURT HELD JESTER.

DEFENSE REFUSED TO SUBMIT ANY TESTIMONY.

TRIAL WILL BE IN JANUARY.

Prisoner Is Very Weak and a Change of Venue Will Probably Not Be Sought.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PARIS, Mo., Oct. 20.—Alexander Jester was bound over to the grandjury without bail this morning by Justice Moss. He is charged with the murder of Gilbert Gates in 1870.

The defense, after the State had rested, declined to submit any testimony. The grandjury meets Monday and the preliminary trial, which lasted 10 days and cost $2500, resulted in nothing but the exposing of the State's theory of the case.

Col. Cullen and Mr. McIntyre left for home yesterday. Their client heard the verdict alone. The prisoner will be indicted and arraigned before Judge Ebey next week and the case set for January, the only time open in this judicial district.

It is hardly probable that Mr. Cullen will apply for a change of venue, as such an act would delay the trial of the case until midsummer, and the aged prisoner cannot stand jail life that long. He is very weak now. It will take six weeks to try the case, the attorneys say.

COLUMBIA THE VICTOR; AMERICA'S CUP SAFE.

the line, and at that time there was not a private yacht or excursion boat around. Shamrock, after running about a half a mile beyond the lightship, went about and started to set her forestay sail. For some reason or other she took it in again. Columbia still kept her one sail.

At 10:45, when the preparatory gun was fired, Columbia was shooting up to the windward of the starting line on the starboard tack. She carried mainsail and jib only, but had her staysail in stops, ready to break out.

The white boat heeled over so that her lee rail was under water all the time and the spray flew over her sharp bows.

The Shamrock was half a mile south of the lightship, but Hogarth was watching for the gun, and when he saw the smoke he fetched the Shamrock about and hurried to get to weather of the line.

While on the port tack, Shamrock's crew hoisted a small working topsail, which caused the Shamrock to heel away down, but so long as the spars held Hogarth did not mind.

Columbia had meantime come about and ran down to meet her rival; then coming about again reached up to windward ahead of the challenger.

Hogarth followed in Columbia's wake, and it was noticed that even after putting up the topsail Shamrock did not pick up any on the American.

Both boats broke out forestay sails when east end of the line and although Columbia was up to windward of her rival, Shamrock, when the starting gun was fired, put her tiller up and swung off to cross the line, breaking out her balloon jib as she did so. Capt. Barr appeared to be in no hurry to get away, and instead of swinging over the line, ran along by it almost to the lightship.

The Shamrock's skipper was not going to wait for the American boat, but tore across the line at 11:34, the crew hauling the spinnaker out to the end of the pole as she swept over.

Barr's apparent motive in not crossing the warning gun was fired at 10:55, and the crews hurried to get their spinnakers ready for breaking out on the starboard side. Shamrock was first to gybe over and headed for the starting line, followed immediately by Columbia.

Capt. Hogarth apparently slowed up a trifle so that the cup defender was about to reach up to Shamrock's weather quarter and in these positions the two racers ran along at tremendous speed for two minutes. By this time each craft had nearly reached the committee tug marking the east end of the line and although Columbia was up to windward of her rival, Shamrock, when the starting gun was fired, put her tiller up and swung off to cross the line, breaking out her balloon jib as she did so. Capt. Barr appeared to be in no hurry to get away, and instead of swinging over the line, ran along by it almost to the lightship.

Barr's apparent motive in not crossing 13½ miles. The wind had strengthened to about 17 knots from north northeast, and was an ideal breeze for the fleet white wings. With every sail that their skippers thought the masts would bear and every stitch of the spread of canvas drawing, they flew over the choppy sea like birds.

At 12:53 p. m. Columbia was increasing her lead. The seas washed her from stem to stern, but she was pointing high and driving along at a high rate of speed. Shamrock was making a great fight to overtake her.

*Fouled and protest allowed.

In the first six miles of the course Shamrock led the way, by about 200 yards.

Capt. Barr seemed to be cautious about putting on all sail in the stiff wind and sea.

In the first three miles, which was sailed in 15 minutes, Columbia seemed to have trouble with her spinnaker, but it soon got to drawing well, and then she began to cut down the lead of the Irish boat.

It was not until she was 20 minutes over the course that Barr broke out his balloon jib.

At 11:30 the boats had covered seven miles of the run to the outer mark. Shamrock was 300 yards ahead. Wind about 18 miles an hour.

At 12:12 p. m., while passing Deal Beach, the observer telegraphed that Shamrock was only leading Columbia by two and one-half seconds and they were one and one-half miles from the stake boat. The wind was then fresh and from the north.

It was plain that Columbia was outrunning Shamrock as they neared the outside mark, for at 12:16 Columbia, according to the Asbury Park observer, was close up to the mark, about 200 yards ahead of Shamrock and to be gaining.

In the last three miles Columbia had overhauled and passed the green racer.

The boats turned the stake boat in this order:

Columbia	12:18:30
Shamrock	12:19:00

At 12:20 p. m. Asbury Park said that Columbia was forging ahead of Shamrock.

At 12:30 the observer at Asbury Park estimated that the Columbia was leading by about a quarter of a mile and that the two yachts were three and a half miles from the turning mark on their way home.

Observers on boats following the racers say that the overhauling of Shamrock by Columbia was the finest bit of racing ever seen in American waters.

She began to close up on Shamrock at 11:40 and in the next 30 minutes blanketed her and passed her. They had then covered

PREVENT BLACK LISTS

ERDMAN ARBITRATION LAW TO BE ENFORCED

AGAINST THE RAILROADS.

Prosecution Begun in Boston and a Movement Is About to Begin in St. Louis.

The United States authorities have begun the enforcement of the Erdman arbitration law, which prohibits employers from blacklisting discharged employes or in any way interfering with them securing positions with other firms or corporations.

It is intended especially to prevent a custom which has heretofore been in vogue among the managements of various railroads, whereby a train man, dismissed from the service of one company, is unable to get employment with another. A sort of round robin, in the shape of a circular, notifying the superintendents that a certain individual should not be employed is promulgated.

At Boston Wednesday Hugh J. Hill, superintendent of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, was arrested on a charge of violating the Erdman law. It is reported that he discharged two telegraphers who belong to the Brotherhood of Railroad Telegraphers and then conspired to pevent them from securing employment with other roads. It is further claimed that he refused to promote employes because they were members of the union, and in other ways violated the provisions of the act. He will be tried on Oct. 25 in the United States District Court at Boston.

This is the first test case, since the law was enacted.

W. V. Powell, president of the Telegraphers' Brotherhood, says that other railroad officials, including representatives of St. Louis roads, will be prosecuted.

The District Attorneys at the Federal Building stated to the Post-Dispatch Friday that they had not been apprised of Mr. Powell's intentions so far as this district is concerned.

IMPERIALISM NOT POPULAR.

Test Made of the Sentiment Among Farmers.

LARGE MAJORITY OPPOSED.

STILL M'KINLEY THINKS THE PEOPLE ARE WITH HIM.

He Is Expected to Finally Disclose His Policy in the Forthcoming Message to Congress.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Oct. 20.—The Farm and Home of this city, a leading paper devoted to the interests of the farm, has polled 21,000 farmers on the issues of imperialism and expansion. Half of the vote comes from the Central and Western States, and the greater part of the other half from the Eastern States. It is a fair test, because there was no attempt to color the vote by partisan methods.

These are the questions sent out and the answers received:

"Should the Filipinos be held in subjection to the United States or should they be allowed to form an independent government?"

Independent	12,520
Subjection	8,416

"Should Cuba be free and independent or should it be annexed to the United States?"

Independent	13,199
Annexed	7,352

"Should Porto Rico be free and independent or should it be annexed to Cuba or to the United States?"

Annexed to the United States	11,897
Independent	8,004
Annexed to Cuba	1,746

"Should there be free trade between the United States and Cuba, Porto Rico and the Philippines?"

No	9,832
Yes	9,327

"Should coolie or contract labor be permitted in Hawaii or other tropical dependencies in defiance of the United States contract labor laws?"

No	18,055
Yes	1,151

"Should United States Senators be elected direct by the people?"

Yes	16,643
No	1,126

The great variation in the distribution of the votes on the different questions shows a surprising independence of thought

THE PRESIDENT PLEASED.

Thinks the People of the West Are Hankering for Imperialism.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—The President is mightily pleased with what he saw and heard during his trip West. He shows this plainly by his cheerful expression and his air of confidence.

From an Administration standpoint President McKinley's tour was a political success of the most pronounced character.

Administration men say the President found a practical unanimity in favor of his Philippine policy, so far as that policy has been permitted to become known, and that he feels sustained and strengthened by these public manifestations of approval.

Members of the Administration say the manner in which his speeches were received and the personal congratulations conveyed to the President by prominent men in every State visited are convincing evidence that Mr. McKinley has the people with him in his effort to crush out the rebellion in the Philippines and then to give to the residents of the islands, under legislation by Congress, the most liberal and Republican form of government for which they evince adaptation.

That the developments attendant upon the President's tour will have their effect upon the formulation of his coming message to Congress is to be expected. His friends say that having sounded public sentiment in the Middle and Western States, and having found it overwhelmingly in favor of the permanent retention of the Philippines, and enthusiastically in support of his foreign policy, he will be inclined to incorporate some specific expansion statement in his message.

In Administration circles there is growing belief that the next national campaign must be conducted upon the question of permanent expansion and the future foreign policy of the Government rather than upon finance. The President's friends say he will not hesitate to blaze the pathway to be followed by his party. The forthcoming message, they assert, will, therefore, be indicative in a large degree of the main features of the Republican National platform next year.

WHO KNOWS SCHLEY'S POLITICS

The Weight of Evidence Serves to Indicate That He Is a Republican.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—Much discussion as to Admiral Schley's politics has been indulged in by makers of Presidential tickets. This much is definite, Schley is not a politician. He will not even admit an interest in political matters. There is no record of his ever having voted. Ever since he was a cadet at the Navy Academy he has always been "with the Goverment," Democratic or Republican, as the case might be.

The citizens of Frederick, Md., where he was born, think he is a Democrat, because all other Schleys are Democratic.

Ralph Granville Whortley, the Rear Admiral's son-in-law, says he is not a Democrat. Gen. Felix Agnus, manager of the Baltimore American and one of the Admiral's most intimate friends, say he is a Republican.

"If Admiral Schley is nominated for the Presidency," said Gen. Agnus, "it will be by the Republicans, and not by the Democrats. I know the Admiral does not seek a nomination, but if he had to run, it would be as a Republican."

Republican leaders of Maryland entertain the same view. A delegation headed by Gov. Lowndes (Republican) recently told President McKinley that the apparent prejudice of the Administration against Rear Admiral Schley was damaging the Republican cause in his native State, as most of the Admiral's friends and champions are Republicans like himself.

Schley, in the meantime, maintains a discreet silence on the subject of politics.

LARGE CROWDS GREET BRYAN.

Ohioans Not As Enthusiastic as Kentuckians.

THEY LISTEN CLOSELY.

M'LEAN MAKES THE INTRODUCTION AT ALL POINTS.

The Present Tour Is Made Through the Free Silver and Heavily Democratic Counties of the Northwest.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DEFIANCE, O., Oct. 20.—John R. McLean, in introducing William J. Bryan to audiences, indorsed the Nebraskan for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1900.

When Mr. McLean, the Democratic candidate for Governor, and Mr. Bryan met Mr. McLean said: "I hope that you are well and have recovered from your cold."

"I am all right," replied Mr. Bryan.

"Just a little hay fever, I suppose,' said McLean.

"That's all," replied Mr. Bryan, "and hay fever, you know, won't do me any harm in the agricultural counties of Ohio."

Mr. McLean flushed a little and looked embarrassed. As the Post-Dispatch has stated, Mr. Bryan's present tour of Ohio, which presumably was arranged by Mr. McLean, is through the free silver and heavily Democratic counties of the northwestern part of the State.

At each speech Mr. McLean introduced Mr. Bryan as the presidential nominee of the Democratic party in 1900. In order to do this he asked the chairman at every meeting for the privilege of introducing Mr. Bryan. This is construed here as an indication that the party in Ohio will indorse Bryan.

In Kentucky Mr. Bryan urged that a vote for Goebel was a vote for the Chicago platform, and so in his speeches in Ohio he declares that vote for McLean is also a vote for the Chicago platform and for everything for which the Democratic party stands.

The crowds here, while of good size, are much less enthusiastic than in Kentucky. Due allowance, however, must be made for difference in temperament. In Kentucky the crowds nearly always made a great deal of noise, frequently interrupted the speakers in order to show approval and were anxious to pat them on the back and shake hands.

What the speaker might say was considered correct as a matter of course, and, therefore, it was not necessary always to listen.

In Ohio the audiences are not noisy, but listen with close attention.

Mr. Bryan will speak at Napoleon, Ottawa, Lima, Sidney, Kenton and Findlay. So far Mr. McLean has made no speeches at all, merely introducing Mr. Bryan.

There is much speculation among the Ohio men accompanying Mr. Bryan and Mr. McLean as to the strength of the vote that Golden Rule Jones will poll. Some say that as many as 125,000 will be cast for him, and Mr. McLean's friends believe that two-thirds of them will come from the Republican party.

EFFECT OF THE FAMINE

SERIOUS CONDITION OF 30,000,000 PEOPLE IN INDIA.

AN AREA OF 350,000 MILES.

Report Made to the Supreme Council Now in Session at Simla.

SIMFIA, India, Oct. 20.—At to-day's meeting of the Supreme Council of India C. M. Rivaz said that the famine affected areas comprised 100,000 miles of British territory and 250,000 miles of the territory of native States, each section containing upward of 15,000,000 of people. The situation in the central provinces, and particularly in Berar, Guzerat, North Deccan, Southeast and Central Punjab, Baroda, Ingore and Rajputana, was distinctly grave.

Mr. Rivaz said he thought the extreme limit of high prices, however, had already been reached and that the food supplies from Nurma and Bengal would prove sufficient.

This would justify the Government in abstaining from the importation of foreign grain or from otherwise interfering with trade. He estimated that the direct relief would cost 1,500,000 rupees, in addition to loans until March, and said that a quarter of a million people were already receiving assistance. The Viceroy, Lord Curzon of Keddleston, said he hoped that the experience he was shortly to gain in visiting the principal areas of distress would enable him to render useful aid and to enter more closely into the joys and sorrows of the Indian people.

He Told the Truth

When he told his friends that the Globe, Seventh and Franklin avenue, sold Boys' Reefers at $1.95 and $2.45 that were actually worth $2.50 to $4.00.

The Body's Purifier.

The kidneys and liver act as purifiers for the human body.

The blood, which is the life, is relieved by them of all poisonous and effete matter, and passes onward to energize and vitalize the entire system.

Most important, then, is it that these organs should adequately perform their proper functions, and happily an agent exists which, when they become disordered, congested and all clogged up, can restore them quickly to their normal healthy condition.

It has blessed the world for twenty-five years, and is known as Warner's Safe Cure. It has saved thousands of lives, and is to-day the only known specific for all diseases and weaknesses of kidneys and liver.

ALASKA LINE FIXED

TEMPORARY ADJUSTMENT HAS BEEN AGREED TO.

AMERICAN PLAN ACCEPTED.

Great Britain's Representative Makes a Formal Call at the State Department.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—Mr. Tower, the British Charge here, called at the State Department to-day and handed to Secretary Hay a note formally accepting for his government the proposition for the temporary adjustment of the Alaskan boundary line proposed by Secretary Hay in his note of yesterday. With that act the long expected modus vivendi relative to the vexed boundary question went into effect. This result has been brought about through the direct negotiation of Secretary Hay and Mr. Tower, after several failures in the past. The State Department is confident that it has conserved every American interest in the arrangement, without unjustly treating Canada.

The divisional line on the West Pass, by which the Dalton trail is reached, is placed 22¾ miles above Pyramid Harbor, which is regarded under the treaty as tidewater mark, so the Canadians are not allowed to reach any point on the Lynn Canal. Moreover, there is no permission given for a free port or even for the free transfer across American territory of Canadian goods except of miner's belongings. These matters may figure later on when it comes to a permanent boundary line, but they are not touched upon in this modus.

The modus vivendi follows the precedent established by Secretary Evarts in 1878 in agreeing upon a temporary boundary on the Stikine River in Alaska by an exchange of notes.

The line on the Chilkat River is 22¾ statute miles from the head of navigation on Chilkat inlet of Lynn Canal and on the Klehini River, 12 statute miles further inland, and the whole valley of Porcupine Creeks is included in the American lines. On White and Chilkoot passes the line is fixed at the summit or water shed, being the points which have for some time past been observed by the customs authorities of the two countries.

The text of the modus vivendi as finally agreed to is as follows:

"It is hereby agreed between the Governments of the United States and of Great Britain that the boundary line between Canada and the Territory of Alaska in the region about the head of Lynn Canal shall be provisionally fixed without prejudice to the claims of either party in the permanent adjustment of the international boundary."

Then follows the technical description of the boundary lines.

PILAR FORCED BACK.

YOUNG'S ADVANCE GUARD SCATTERED THE FILIPINOS.

ONLY ONE AMERICAN KILLED.

Heavy Resistance Was Met at San Fernando, Where the Natives Destroyed a Bridge.

MANILA, Oct. 20.—Gen. Young's advance guard of Gen. Lawton's column left Cabiao yesterday morning and entered San Isidro at half-past 1 o'clock.

The American loss was one killed and three wounded. The heaviest resistance met with was at San Fernando, where the enemy destroyed a bridge.

Gen. Flo del Pilar arrived from San Miguel and personally commanded the Filipinos. He and the bulk of the enemy retreated up the river.

One Spaniard and 15 insurgents were captured. The loss of the enemy is not known. The townspeople appear to be friendly.

Batson's Macabebes met two companies of the insurgents strongly intrenched four miles north of Arayat.

The Macabebes flanked them and drove them out of the trenches, killing six and wounding many.

One lieutenant and eight soldiers, armed with rifles, were captured.

DEFINE THEIR RIGHTS.

Schurman's Advice to Congress on the Philippine Question.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—J. G. Schurman, president of Cornell University, member of the Philippines Commission, said, in an interview:

"The more one hears of the Philippine problem the less one will be disposed to think any solution proposed free from objections. But some points of cardinal importance are beyond dispute.

"Under the law of nations the United States has unimpeachable sovereignty over the Philippine Islands.

"But one must not fail to make use of every means available for the attainment of the end in view. And, when we bear in mind that the Filipinos, since the signing of the treaty of peace, have been without political status or civil rights, it would seem both just and politic for Congress, to whom the treaty delegates the function, to declare authoritatively what rights and privileges the Filipinos are to enjoy.

"My advice is this: Increase your military forces, but at the same time tell the pacific Filipinos what you are going to do with them, and, while your grant will undoubtedly satisfy the non-belligerents, it will also weaken among the belligerents the power now exercised by Aguinaldo. This is Lincoln's border-state policy applied to the Philippines, where I beg you will note the dubious neutrals far outnumbered the belligerents."

MAY RENOMINATE DIAZ.

Sentiment in Mexico Strongly Favors the Present Executive.

MEXICO CITY, Mexico, Oct. 20.—Presidents of the clubs in the various important towns have nominated President Diaz for a new term of office and a club in this city, largely composed of professional men, has taken similar action. Preparations are making by the Central Committee of the Liberal party for taking a plebiscite of all voters in the republic in January so as to ascertain without prejudice the exact feeling of the masses of the people.

The new Governor of the State of Chiapas, Senor Primentel, has been received by the people of that remote State with marked enthusiasm.

A LUNATIC'S STRENGTH

FIERCE STRUGGLE WITH AN INSANE MAN AT DISPENSARY.

TOOK SIX MEN TO SUBDUE HIM.

Samuel Ostendorf Imagines Himself a Pugilist and Demonstrated His Prowess.

Samuel Ostendorf of 1320 Collins street, an insane man, 23 years old, who has a delusion that he is a champion prize fighter, tried to wreck the City Dispensary Friday morning.

His relatives asked that he be incarcerated in the insane asylum, and two friends decoyed him to the dispensary, where two asylum attendants were waiting to take charge of him.

Ostenworf was led into the office and turned over to the attendants from the asylum. His friends then left.

When the attendants asked Ostendorf to accompany them to the ambulance he declared that he was going home; he said he had defeated Sharkey, Corbett, Fitzsimmons and all the prize fighters of the period, and would not go anywhere except into the prize ring.

The attendants took hold of him and the battle began. Ostendorf shook off the two men and backed into a corner, shouting defiance.

Dispensary patients, in the outer room, fled in terror, and all the attaches of the institution rushed to the assistance of the asylum men. A combined attack by half a dozen ambulance drivers and doctors was made on the lunatic. They bore him to the floor by main force. He struggled out of their grasp and picked up a chair.

Dr. Vogel rushed in and threw his arms around the man before he could make use of the improvised weapon. The others grabbed Ostendorf again and the struggling group wrestled around the room, overturning chairs and knocking down bottles.

Ostendorf did not succeed in striking anyone. His arms were finally pinioned and strapped. He was carried into the ambulance and started for the asylum, still shouting that he was a prize fighter. He was a stout mounter.

COKING WESTERN COAL.

New Process Tested That Means Much to Mine Owners.

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 20.—A revolution in the coke business of the country is promised by tests made of a new system now in operation in Chicago. Now, it is asserted, an apparatus has been devised whereby Illinois, Iowa, Indiana and Utah coal may be coked, leaving a commodity of commercial value at far less expense than the coke of the East.

SHOOTING WAS TOO EXCITING.

Witnesses in the Williams Case Contradict Each Other.

HARD TO ASCERTAIN FACTS.

TESTIMONY FOR THE DEFENSE BEGUN FRIDAY.

Many Eye-Witnesses to the Tragedy, but the Evidence Appears Confused as to Material Incidents.

It would seem that the exact truth as to what happened at the corner of Natural Bridge road and Grand avenue on the afternoon of March 16 last, when Joan M. Williams, formerly a city detective, is alleged to have slain Edward Kassebaum and Bud Pierce, can never be established.

There were a large number of eye witnesses, but they do not agree as to the incidents of the tragedy. They differ widely in their statements. Some of them say that Williams fired five shots, others that he shot three times. Most of them agree that Williams emptied his revolver. As a matter of fact, according to his counsel, he did not. The weapon was a six-shooter and Williams' lawyers claim to know that he held two cartridges in reserve.

The evidence has plainly established that Williams was shooting at Fred Gastorf, who stood behind a telegraph pole until Williams ceased firing, then came out and shot once at him. Williams' motive for shooting at Gastorf was not made clear by the State. In fact, neither side seems to have a clear idea of any cause of enmity between Williams and Gastorf.

The defense's theory appears to be that the crowd was assailing Williams, several men displaying revolvers, and that Gastorf essayed to subdue Williams by drawing a revolver and presenting it at him; that Williams backed away and as Gastorf snapped his revolver at him Williams opened fire.

So far, although it is claimed by the State's witnesses that not more than five shots were fired toward Gastorf and the crowd, six bullets sent in that direction have been accounted for—two that struck Kassebaum, one that struck Bud Pierce, two that lodged in the telegraph pole and one that Richard Beck swore struck him in the side.

As is usual when a large number of persons, who see a series of exciting incidents in a very short space of time from different points of view, the witnesses stick to the variations of their statements with persistency. Neither of them is willing to admit that he might be mistaken, and only one, a school boy, has said anything about being frightened.

Williams' friends are confident he will be acquitted and neither he nor his counsel seem to be in the least doubt as to the result.

The defendant and Attorney Gernez of counsel for him, were in the courtroom before 9 o'clock Friday morning. They seemed to be in good spirits and in high feather over the apparent failure of the State to establish as strong a case Thursday as its attorneys hoped.

The defense opened its case Thursday afternoon as was stated in late editions of the Post-Dispatch. The first witness was John T. Murray, formerly a conductor on a Bellefontaine car. He testified that Gastorf drew his revolver and was trying to shoot Williams before the latter drew his revolver. He said that Williams fired only three shots. As was indicated by the trend of the cross-examination of Gastorf, he testified that Gastorf asked him Wednesday to swear that he—Gastorf—did not draw his revolver until Williams had begun firing.

Clarence Keeton, a motorman, living at 2101 East Grand avenue, testified that Gastorf drew his revolver and snapped it several times at Williams before the latter fired. Witness said only three shots were fired.

A. T. Bond, a master plumber, was positive that Gastorf was the first to draw a revolver, and was snapping it at Williams when the latter began to shoot.

The first witness Friday morning was Hoyle Barrett, a neatly dressed, bright-faced boy, apparently about 16 years old. He said that he saw a man he afterwards learned was Gastorf, draw a revolver and snap it at a man who was backing away from him into the street. After that the shooting began.

Cross-examined, Barrett said he was frightened when he saw Gastdorf trying to shoot, and he ran away. He thought about a dozen shots were fired. He was very sure he had not discussed the case with any one.

Frank Pears of 3612 North Grand avenue, a baseball player, who was with the St. Thomas team of the Canadian League last summer, testified that after Damman fired a shot in the air to attract the police a crowd surrounded Williams, cursing him and ordering him to leave the neighborhood of the polls. Williams seemed to be unarmed, and was backing away from the crowd. Witness saw several revolvers "flashed." As Williams reached the middle of the street Gastorf drew a pistol and jumped behind a telegraph pole and pointed the weapon at Williams, who then drew a revolver and pointed it toward Gastorf. Witness heard shots, but was not sure who fired them.

Cross-examined, Pears said he knew Williams by sight, but never spoke to him. Not more than two or three minutes elapsed between the shooting by Damman and that by Williams. Witness said that Williams had nothing to do with the trouble that caused Damman to shoot.

Pears was sure in his statements that Williams stood on the defensive throughout the entire trouble.

Allen Dougherty, a piano tuner, who lives in Chicago now, but formerly resided on North Twenty-first street, told how Damman fired his revolver and said that about ten or fifteen minutes afterward the crowd surged toward Williams, who was backing away. A man he learned was Jack Barry had a big knife, and flourishing it urged the crowd to "get the ——— ———," meaning Williams. Then a man (Gastorf) drew a revolver, pointed it at Williams and jumped behind a telegraph pole. Williams said to him, "Don't shoot." The man behind the pole snapped his pistol twice before Williams drew his revolver. Then Williams dropped to his knee and opened fire on the man behind the pole.

Cross-examining the witness, Mr. Krone brought out that Dougherty lived on Seventh and Elm street, 2128 Pine street and over 101 North Twenty-first street. While he resided on Twenty-first street he played the piano at Tom Allen's resort on Market street. He formerly played at Manley's saloon. His business in the neighborhood of the shooting was to look up a piano that he heard needed tuning. The piano was said to belong to Mrs. Dorn of Spring and Prairie avenue.

As Spring and Prairie avenues run parallel, the witness was slightly mixed, but he explained that he knew nothing about the streets in that locality. The witness demonstrated the truth of this assertion by evincing a firm conviction that the scene of the shooting was at Prairie and Grand avenues.

Witness testified that during the first difficulty Damman "shoved a gun" in his face and said: "You ——— ——— get out of here." Witness knocked the pistol up in the air and it was discharged.

Witness said the defendant paid his fare from Chicago.

To the question: "Don't you know that you don't know the difference between Prairie and Grand avenues and that you were no, at the scene of the shooting?" the witness replied with asperity, "I don't know anything of the the sort."

In re-direct examination Mr. Gernez asked the witness if he did not belong to the Merchants' League Club.

Mr. Eggers objected strenuously, but the question was answered in the affirmative and Gernez remarked with a tantalizing laugh that he wanted to show that the witness and the gentlemen of the prosecution belonged to the same organization.

The sally caused a laugh in which Mr. Eggers and Mr. Krone did not join.

Chris Bruning, who was employed by the Consumers' Brewery at the time of the targedy, testified that no one standing on the porch of the brewery office could see the shooting.

Louis Varwig had testified that he saw the shooting from that point.

This was a strong point, as discrediting the strongest witness for the prosecution.

Mr. Krone tried in cross-examination to retaliate for the jibe at the Merchants' League Club. Bruning is now employed by the Columbia Brewery.

"Ah!" said Mr. Krone, in a tone of triumph, "that is Tony Steuver's brewery."

The audience laughed in derision at the attorney's display of ignorance as to the name of Police Commissioner Steuver's great eleemosynary, patriotic, thirst destroying institution, and the witness evidently enjoyed telling him he was mistaken.

Mr. Krone abandoned this line and proceeded to bring out that Bruning was in error in asserting that a person in the position that Varwig claimed to have been in could not possibly have seen the shooting. Bruning steadfastly declined to admit that he might have been mistaken.

Mr. Krone kept at the witness until the latter became argumentative in support of his claim that Varwig could not have seen the shooting.

"You mustn't argue—answer the questions," said the court, mildly.

"But, Judge, he's gittin' me into an argument," said Bruning, with an emphasis that provoked a laugh.

Mr. Krone then gave the witness up as a bad job.

W. L. Dees, a driver for J. D. Marshall, testified that he saw Gastorf draw a revolver and present it at Williams before the latter drew his revolver.

The witness was positive that Gastorf was the aggressor and that Williams shot directly at Gastorf.

In cross-examination witness said he had known the defendant several years. Williams kept a horse and buggy at Marshall's stable and witness took care of it. Witness called Williams "Jack" and Williams called witness "Bill." Williams had tipped him but twice during their acquaintance.

Dees was an admirable witness for Williams. Try as he would Mr. Krone failed to shake him.

Theodore Martin, a contractor, testified that he saw four or five men with "guns" in their hands running after Williams saying "Shoot the ——— ———! Kill him!" Gastorf drew a revolver and tried to shoot Williams before the latter displayed his weapon. While Gastorf was trying to shoot, Williams began firing. Witness is a neighbor of Gastorf, but never spoke to him until after the tragedy. Witness' son was in witness' buggy near the scene of the shooting.

Circuit Attorney Eggers cross-examined the witness and his tone indicated that he was angry. He questioned the witness as to whether he saw Ben Horracks, "Bullet" Dwyer, "Coxey" Holden and others who are alleged to have been with Williams at the scene of the shooting. The defense objected, but the evidence was admitted. Witness saw several of the persons named, in the crowd, but did not see Williams to know him. He did not know Williams at that time by sight. His attention was attracted to Williams because it seemed to him that the crowd appeared to want to kill him. This was during the first disturbance, when Damman fired his revolver. Witness said Damman fired in the direction of Williams, but too high to hit him. At the coroner's inquest the witness said the shot was fired directly at Williams.

When witness next saw Williams it was several minutes later. He was backing into the street and drew his revolver. Gastorf was standing behind the telegraph pole. Witness could see his revolver.

The State tried to force the admission that witness was not in a position to see Gastorf's revolver, but he persisted that he did see it. Witness did see the shots fired as he was moving out of range of the bullets. He did not see the shot fired by Gastorf. He said other persons shot at Williams as he ran away.

In re-direct the witness made it clear that he saw Gastorf try to use his revolver before Williams drew his weapon.

Robert Martin, aged 17 years, son of Theodore Martin, testified that he was close to Gastorf and saw him try to shoot Williams, who then drew his own pistol from his overcoat pocket and began shooting.

The boy stood a rigorous cross-examination very well. He said he was holding his father's horse and, although the horse was prancing, he had a good view of both Williams and Gastrof. He said he didn't think there were more than two or three shots fired, but he was excited and couldn't be certain as to that.

The witness admitted that his statement on the stand as to his position during the shooting differed somewhat from that which he made at the inquest. He explained that he changed his statement because he had since then visited the scene and made a careful estimate of distances.

Counsel for the State sought to make much of this admission, but the boy answered all questions clearly and with apparent frankness.

He was the most impressive witness for Williams.

ANOTHER COMPANY TO PAY.

Insurance Corporation Pleads Guilty Under Anti-Trust Law.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Oct. 20.—Another foreign insurance company doing business in Missouri withdrew its returns and answers previously filed in the Supreme Court in banc, and entered a plea of guilty this morning to violating the anti-trust law of Missouri by being a member of the Underwriters' Social Club of St. Joseph, for the purpose of controlling rates.

This was the New Hampshire Fire Insurance Co. of Manchester, N. H. The court will pass sentence upon this company within a few days, fining it $1000 and costs, as in the case of the other companies.

The American Central Insurance Co. of St. Louis will also enter a plea of guilty in this court to such violation and throw itself upon the mercy of the court. This will increase the total 90, leaving only 11 to be disposed of yet by the court.

DEATH OF GEO. H. FREDERICK.

Father of the City Assessor Died Suddenly From Paralysis.

George Henry Frederick, father of Assessor A. H. Frederick, died suddenly at his home at 2626 Cherokee street, Thursday night.

Mr. Frederick had been in the best of health, although 74 years of age. At 6 o'clock, while sitting in his room, he was stricken with paralysis. His single daughter, who kept house for him, found him a few minutes later. He was unable to move or speak and the assistance of neighbors was required to take him to his bed. Physicians were summoned but could do nothing and he died four hours after he was stricken.

Mr. Frederick was well-known in South St. Louis. He was once a contractor, but he retired many years ago. He was a widower and had two sons and two daughters, all married except the daughter who kept house for him.

JUST A LITTLE FAMILY AFFAIR.

Councilman Schnell's Contracts With the City.

IN VIOLATION OF THE LAW.

STORY OF THE SOUTH SIDE SUPPLY COMPANY.

Mr. Schnell's Family Constitutes the Company Awarded Contracts to Furnish Groceries to the City.

ONE LAW FOR ALL.

In addition to the qualifications in the preceding section, every member of the Municipal Assembly shall possess the following:

"He shall not be directly or indirectly interested in any contract with the city, or any department or institution thereof," etc.

"Any member who shall at any time during his term cease to possess any of the qualifications mentioned in this and the preceding sections shall thereby forfeit his office."—Sec. 6., Art. 3, Scheme and Charter.

Among the contracts for furnishing supplies to the city institutions for the next three months, awarded Thursday, is one to the "South Side Supply Co."

This seems harmless enough to the average taxpayer. The South Side is a highly respectable part of St. Louis, and there is no reason on the face of things why it should not have a supply company of as high an order of merit as any other "side" of St. Louis or any other town.

But if you go to the South Side on a voyage of discovery and ask questions about the South Side Supply Co. you are apt to get information that will surprise you.

If you don't know much about the methods of the patriots who manage affairs at the City Hall you may wonder that such things can be and the grandjury not hear about it.

The South Side Supply Co. is an institution made and provided for the benefit of the Schneli family, of which Louis Schnell, a member of the City Council, is the head and front. The incorporators, officers and stockholders are all Schnells.

Councilman Schnell owns and operates a grocery at 1344 Chouteau avenue.

Just back of the grocery and connected with it by a yard is a small brick building, on the front of which is a sign indicating that there the South Side Supply Co. has its being. The front door of this building is kept locked, but by peering through the glass one can see that there is $7 or possibly $8 worth of brooms and similar articles stored inside.

By asking any of the neighbors where the office of the supply company is you will learn that it is at Schnell's grocery.

The neighbor will probably express mild surprise that you didn't know this before, and if you question him further he will tell you that the supply company is generally recognized as a branch of the Schnell grocery, intended as a shield to protect Councilman Schnell from the possible consequences of violating the law prohibiting members of the Council from receiving city contracts.

The supply company was organized shortly after Schnell was elected a member of the Council, and it is said to have done no business worth mentioning except with the city.

The records of the Recorder's office show that the "South Side Supply Company" was incorporated with a capital stock of $5000, divided into 50 shares of $100 each, as follows: Frederick Schnell, 18 shares; Josephine Schnell, 16 shares; Lilian Schnell, 16 shares. The incorporators are Councilman Schnell's son and two daughters, and the incorporation occurred at about the time of Schnell's election to the City Council.

Other firms that were awarded contracts to furnish the city with groceries are M. Dougherty, the New Era Grocery Co., the Western Candy and Bakers' Supply Co. and the Redemeyer-Holtster Commission Co. Potatoes will be furnished at 32 cents a bushel and sweet potatoes at 60 cents a bushel, which is a little lower than the previous contract prices. Sugar is also cheaper, the price being $4.90 per hundred pounds for granulated. Creamery butter will be furnished for 20.48 cents per pound, and eggs at 16.49 cents per dozen. The prices on dried fruits, beans, peas, bacon and other dried meats are a little higher than the former prices.

The contracts for the same three months last year were worth $75,000; this year they are estimated at $80,000. There are five contractors, so Mr. Schnell's "South Side Supply Co." will receive about $16,000.

SOLDIERS GOT DRUNK.

WILD DISORDER AMONG THE 46TH MASSACHUSETTS.

DRUM-HEAD COURT-MARTIALS.

Many Sent at Once to the Military Prisons and Others Will Be Dismissed From the Service.

There were wild times on the trains which brought the Forty-sixth Regiment of Massachusetts Volunteers to St. Louis early Friday morning on its way to San Francisco to embark for the Philippines.

Many of the men became drunk. Riotous scenes and fights followed. It was necessary to have drumhead court-martials and a number were sent to prison.

The trouble started at Cincinnati, where a number of the men were given leave to go uptown. They returned uproariously drunk. They fought among themselves at the station and almost caused a panic among the passengers.

Col. Schuyler ordered the arrest of the men and they were forced on board. There a drumhead court-martial was immediately held. About 25 of the offenders were sentenced to serve a term in the penitentiary, after which they will be dismissed from the service. They were sent under a strong guard to the military prison at Columbus.

Other soldiers became drunk at Cincinnati and after the trains left there had many fights among themselves on the cars. At Valley Junction Col. Schuyler stopped all of the trains and had another court-martial.

At that place Col. Schuyler went through all the cars, sword in hand, and told the men that if there was any more disorder they would meet a worse fate than being sent to prison.

That quieted the men somewhat, and there was no more trouble on the way to St. Louis.

Here the men were transferred from the Big Four to the Missouri Pacific. They were sullen, but made no trouble in the yards. Care will be taken on the rest of the journey that none of them get any liquor.

WILL FIGHT THE COLLECTOR.

Attorney McCann Read His Defense to the Single Tax League.

The main portion of the meeting of the Social Reform Union Thursday night was devoted to a discussion of the Single Tax League's plan of resisting the collection of personal property taxes.

The city has recently brought several thousand suits for back taxes on personal property. The Single Tax League has placed itself in communication with these citizens and is endeavoring to get them all to join in the defense which they set up. The league claims that a tax upon personal property infringes upon the citizen's right to the fruits of his own industry within the meaning of the Constitution.

Mr. McCann, who is taking the leading part in these suits, and who acts as counsel, read the answer prepared by him, which will be filed in controvertion of the city's petition.

The discussion was entered into by Mr. Lee Merriwether, Mr. Herman, Mr. Atkinson and Mr. Custer.

The next meeting will be held Wednesday evening, Nov. 1, tenth floor Century Building.

They had planned to wed Thursday morning, but Miss Fullbright, who was coming from Lincon to meet Rhodes, took the wrong train out of Omaha and was delayed 12 hours.

Sick Women Advised to Seek Advice of Mrs. Pinkham.

[LETTER TO MRS. PINKHAM NO. 94,853]

"I had inflammation and falling of the womb, and inflammation of ovaries, and was in great pain. I took medicine prescribed by a physician, but it did me no good. At last I heard of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and after using it faithfully I am thankful to say I am a well women. I would advise all suffering women to seek advice of Mrs. Pinkham."—MRS. G. H. CHAPPELL, GRANT PARK, ILL.

"For several years my health was miserable. I suffered the most dreadful pains, and was almost on the verge of insanity. I consulted one of the best physicians in New York, and he pronounced my disease a fibroid tumor, advising an operation without delay, saying that it was my only chance for life. Other doctors prescribed strong and violent medicine, and one said I was incurable, another told me my only salvation was galvanic batteries, which I tried, but nothing relieved me. One day a friend called and begged me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I began its use and took several bottles. From the very first bottle there was a wonderful change for the better. The tumor has disappeared entirely and my old spirits have returned. I heartily recommend your medicine to all suffering women."—MRS. VAN CLEFT, 416 SAUNDERS AVE., JERSEY CITY HEIGHTS, N. J.

Suicide Cannot Be Pleaded by Insurance Companies or Fraternal Societies in Missouri.

The United States Court of Appeals handed down an opinion Friday supporting the decision of the lower court in the case of Rosa B. Jarmon against the Knights Templar and the Masons' Life Indemnity Co.

The woman's husband, John P. Jarmon, committed suicide in St. Louis a year ago. He was insane at the time.

He was insured in the Knights Templar Society for $5000. The organization refused to pay the money to his widow, claiming that her husband having killed himself his heirs had forfeited all right to it.

Mrs. Jarmon brought suit in the Federal Court.

The defense contended that the law of 1885, which declared that suicide could not be made a defense by an insurance company, was repealed in 1897, in so far as it pertained to benevolent societies.

The court held that the law in force at the time Jarmon entered the society, was the one directly bearing on the case. It was further stated that in 1897 the General Assembly of Missouri re-enacted the laws on life insurance policies, returning substantially to the old statute.

The court, reasoning from this point, concludes that suicide, under the laws of Missouri, cannot be urged by an insurance company or other organization as refusal to pay on a policy, unless it can be shown that the individual at the time of subscribing for the policy contemplated suicide.

It is ordered that the full amount of the policy, $5000, be paid to the plaintiff, together with the assessments, aggregating $811, which her husband paid into the society.

Suburban City Will Soon Double Its Population.

The Town Surveyor of Kirkwood is at work making a map of the city as it will appear when the city limits are extended. The map will be submitted to the Town Board at its next meeting, when formal action in the extension of territory will probably be taken.

The population of Kirkwood will be almost doubled by the addition of the new territory. The extension will take in Avondale to the north, Woodlawn to the east, Zephyr Heights to the south and Holden's addition to the west.

All saloons within the boundaries will have to move or pay a license of $1500 a year and do away with blinds and screens.

GONE TO TRIAL AT CLAYTON.

Charles H. Jones' Suit Against the St. Louis Railroad Co.

The suit of Charles H. Jones against the St. Louis Railway Company to recover $10,000 personal damages went to trial in the Circuit Court at Clayton Friday.

Jones is alleged to suffer from traumatic neurosis, a peculiar nervous disease, as a result of an accident on the Broadway cable Oct. 5, 1897. He was sitting on the front seat of the gripper when the car dashed into a coal wagon at Cass avenue.

Jones was mixed up in the collision and sustained severe injuries. He has suffered from the nervous complaint ever since and his physician says the ailment is incurable.

The cross-examination of L. G. Kammerer, who was cashier of the Mullanphy Bank, was begun before Judge Seddon, the referee appointed by court, Friday morning.

Kammerer admitted that the semi-annual reports made to the Secretary of State were made out by him and that they were signed by President Rothman and the directors without investigation.

MRS. BRENNAN WILL GET $500.

Successful in Her Damage Suit Against the City.

Mrs. Eliza Brennan was awarded a verdict and judgment against the city of St. Louis for $500 by a jury in the Circuit Court at Clayton Thursday.

Mrs. Brennan, who is an old and enfeebled woman, brought suit for injuries sustained while walking on a defective sidewalk on La Salle street, between Fifth and Sixth streets, Feb. 17, 1894. She claims to have fallen through a hole in the sidewalk and sustained injuries from which she will never recover. She sued for $10,000.

The case was tried in St. Louis and resulted in a hung jury. It was taken to Clayton on a change of venue.

WHILE HE WAS IN PRISON.

Lafayette Alexandgr Wants Levies on His Property Quashed.

Lafayette Alexander has begun proceedings in the Circuit Court to have a levy on some of his real property quashed. He claims that the levy was made on a judgment rendered against him, March 13, 1893, in favor of Fiana Davis.

He says he was in the State Penitentiary at that time and could not defend the suit, the court granting Mrs. Davis a default without appointing a guardian for the suit. He claims the judgment, rendered under those circumstances, is illegal.

WAS POLITE TO ANOTHER'S WIFE.

James G. England Stabbed by Mrs. Rigelow's Husband.

AN UNEXPECTED RECEPTION.

MRS. MARY M'MILLAN UNDER OBSERVATION.

Actor Edward Kissam's Ankle Sprained—The Day's List of Unfortunates at the City Hospital.

When James G. England volunteered to escort Mrs. Charles Rigelow to her home, 2725 Olive street, Thursday night, he did not anticipate the reception that awaited him.

The woman's husband took England to task, declaring his services were entirely unnecessary. There was a spirited argument, and in the quarrel that followed England was stabbed in the chest and seriously wounded.

He was sent to the City Hospital. Dr. Babler thinks he will recover.

England is 36 years old and lives with his wife and family at 4040A North Grand avenue. Mrs. Rigelow, it appears, has visited the house frequently, and whenever she remained after dark England says he took her home. There was at no previous time, he insists, any objection on Rigelow's part. "We were always good friends," he said to the Post-Dispatch, "and I can't imagine what got into Charlie last night. When he opened the door and saw me he began to upbraid his wife and then he abused me. He struck me over the eye with his fist and in the scuffle I was cut. A policeman heard us quarreling and brought us to the station house. Not till then did I know I was injured."

Rigelow is locked up at the Tenth District Station. He says he will defend his action at the proper time. He is joint owner of a saloon at Twelfth street and Washington avenue.

During the last few weeks a middle-aged woman, wearing a heavy black veil, has visited the Four Courts every morning in search of a certain policeman.

Her alleged sweetheart apparently did not reciprocate her attentions. In fact, he claimed she was mistaken, and so she came to be known as the mysterious woman in black.

Chief Campbell has many handsome bluecoats in his employ, and not a few bestowed winning smiles on the fair lady. She was attractive, despite her 45 years, and was evidently gratified at the curiosity she aroused.

Thursday night she walked into the Central District Station and called for her favorite. He was not there. The sergeant in charge said he was out hunting for crooks. The woman still insisted on seeing him, and emphasized her demands by pounding her umbrella on the floor. It was then deemed advisable to send her to the hospital for observation.

There she gave her name as Mrs. Mary Taylor, and said she lived at 914 Market street.

Inquiry at the number mentioned developed that her right name is Mrs. Mary McMillan, wife of John McMillan, a mechanic.

Mr. McMillan stated to the hospital physicians that his wife had been missing from home for three weeks. He said she had been acting strangely before she left and would cry out in her sleep, "Oh, Tom, won't you marry me?" He was not acquainted, he said, with the policeman with whom she claimed to be infatuated. Of late she had treated McMillan with indifference.

Dr. Nietert says the woman's mind is undoubtedly deranged.

"I have known the patrolman," she said, "for eight years, and he thinks more of me than I do for him. My little boy had been arrested and he helped me all he could to get him free. I felt so grateful to him, and he acted so nicely that I just fell in love with him. I wish he was here now to cheer me. Yes, I know where I am, but, truly, my only delusion is love."

Edward Kissam, an actor, is a patient at the hospital. He is suffering from a fractured ankle.

He says he got out on the wrong side of the bed and his foot twisted. He was stopping at the Burlington Hotel.

O, take me to your hospital home.
Keen blows the wind and piercing is the cold.
Short is my passage to the friendly tomb,
For I am poor and miserably old.

"Poor and miserably old" is Mary Morgan, who knocked at the door of the City Hospital early Friday morning and begged a place to sleep.

"No one will help me," she said to the doorkeeper, "and I'm about starved and you can see I have nothing to cover me."

If it were not for a weakness Mary Morgan might be in better circumstances. She was at one time prosperous, it is said, but took to drink after her husband died.

For years she has been a wanderer, sleeping in various public institutions of the city. The doctors say she was almost benumbed from the cold Friday. Her constitution is broken down.

Harry Cole, a porter, living at 419 South Twelfth street, was picked up from the street Thursday night and sent to the hospital. He was placed in division 8. Dr. Scharff says his condition is serious.

Cole claims to belong to a prominent family.

Barton Gaither of 2432 Fall avenue died at the hospital Friday morning from injuries received in an accident at his home a few weeks ago. He was 66 years old.

Miss Julia Lewis fell unconscious on the floor Thursday afternoon in one of the downtown stores, where she was employed as a saleswoman. She was immediately attended by the house physician and nurse, who soon revived her. She was taken to the City Hospital. She is suffering from a recurrence of fainting spells, and the doctors say she will recover in a few days.

WHY A STREET CLOCK STOPPED

Big Transfer Wagon Ran Into and Crushed Its Face.

Something less than a million people stopped in front of the Chemical building at Eighth and Olive streets Friday forenoon and exercised the great American privilege of asking questions.

The clock, which had sat atop of an ornamental post in front of the entrance and pointed its hands at the time o' day, had been "fixed." Its face seemed to have been punched. It was all bent and crushed and broken and looked as though it would never again tick off the hours and minutes.

The question was, how it came so? It was too high above the sidewalk to have got mixed up in a fight, and it did not seem possible that a missile could have been thrown with sufficient force to do all that damage. People stopped and looked and wondered and exchanged speculations and went away still wondering.

The damage and the resultant speculation was caused by a St. Louis Transfer wagon. It came along there at about 7:30. It was No. 131 and the driver's name was Horton. There was a top-heavy load on the wagon, and one of the big boxes caught the clock squarely in the face and knocked it out completely.

TRELAWNY OF THE WELLS.

A Brilliant Audience Witnessed the Production of Pinero's Pretty Play at the the Olympic.

If the women in the brilliant audiences at the Olympic were clothed after the fashion of the women on the stage this would not have been written. The writer would still be struggling to reach the outer air.

What great expansionists those mantua makers of the early '60s must have been, and what an achievement in those days for a beau to approach a lady; and how long must a sofa have been to accommodate two sighing lovers. And those pantalets, how they—well, anyway, it must have been a queer world to live in in the early '60s.

But then if there were women in it like Rose Trelawny it wouldn't have been so bad, after all.

When that fine old actress, Mrs. Thomas Whiffen, made her entry in the character of Mrs. Mossop in the first act there was a chorus of well-bred feminine "Ohs." Her every movement was watched and when the audience saw that the dear old lady actually could sit down in that wonderful skirt a sigh of positive relief stole through the house.

There had been a lurking fear that she might make a false calculation and miss the chair.

Mrs. Massop's early entry was a stroke of art. It prepared the audience for what was coming. After that the crinoline evoked no startled cries, and by the time the second act was on the men and women in the plush seats hardly seemed to note it as something out of the ordinary. They had entered heart and soul into the mimic world created by the genius of Pinero and Frohman and the latter's excellent players. If the masculine element had been less well bred there might have been a demonstration when Olive May stooped with her back to the audience, but the demonstration was all on the part of Miss May.

"Trelawny of the Wells" has not progressed very far before one realizes that the actor folk are in an anomalous position—that of exploiting the faults and follies of their own profession.

In the last act Mr. Pinero tries to make it clear that he has been lampooning actors and acting of the "old school," but the line is scarcely convincing. What is the old school? Will not the "new school" of to-day be the old school of to-morrow? Have the petty jealousies, the covert "knocks" that one player deals another, the glaring ill manners that masquerade as Bohemianism—a verbal crinoline, that word Bohemianism—have all these things passed out of the life of actors and actresses? It would seem that Mr. Pinero thinks not: Else why should he expect an audience of '98 to see the value of the high lights and half tones in his picture of the early '60s?

But there are purple patches on the Thespian gown. That much Mr. Pinero has conceded in the creation of Rose Trelawny and Tom Wrench.

The story of the play is easily told on paper, beautifully told on the stage.

Rose, an actress born of an actress, mounts to the limit of provincial success as leading woman of the Bagnigge Wells Theater. She is beautiful, she is winsome, she is sweet, she is—Mary Manning. She is devoted to her art with all her soul. But her heart—ah, that is another matter?

A young man steps out of the great world, the real world, into the little world, the tinseled world to court "Trelawny of the Wells."

Arthur Gower is his name. His wooing prospers and Rose leaves the Wells to take up her abode at the home of the great Gowers. Arthur's grandfather and great-aunt. She hasn't been there long when she beats against the golden bars. The old folks are sleepy, prosy and straight-laced. Rose tries her best to please, but she longs to sing again the little ballad she sang when she stood on the bridge in the mountebank. She tries it once and brings down the wrath of the house of Gower upon her. Some of her player friends call upon her and are ordered from the house. Rose can stand no more. She goes with her friends "back to the Wells."

She resumes her place, but somehow she can't act as she once did. She has seen the great world. As in the case of many another her very experience has destroyed her usefulness.

"I thought I was all that was good and sweet and womanly," she says, "and find I am only—an actress."

Rose receives her notice of dismissal. The audiences at the Wells will have no more of her.

Tom Wrench has struggled along in the Bagnigge Wells company for 10 years and can get nothing better to play than a section of the dragon in Christmas pantomimes. He is a fine fellow, this Tom Wrench, and is impersonated by a fine actor—John Mason.

Well—Wrench has written a comedy, but has no money to stage it. Old Gower comes to Rose's pitifully poor quarters in search of Arthur, who disappeared when Rose went "back to the Wells." The old man fears his grandson is in Rose's lodging house, but discovers his mistake. He learns, too, of Rose's misfortune and advances money to stage Tom Wrench's comedy.

Young Arthur Gower has meanwhile determined that if he cannot adapt Rose to his life he will adapt himself to hers. While everybody is looking for him he is in London studying for the stage. Of course he is cast for a part in Tom's comedy. The final scene is the rehearsal, in which Rose and Arthur are reunited.

And poor Tom Wrench, the plodding genius who has brought it all about and who would give the fortune almost in his grasp to kiss the hem of Rose Trelawny's crinoline—for he, too, loves her—gulps down a sob and says rather sternly:

"Go on with the rehearsal."

There are many beautiful ever-shifting side lights—the farewell dinner to Rose, the kindly offices of Avonia Bunn and Imogen Parrot, rival actresses, the elder Gower's awakening sense of what he owes to Rose—if your heart can be quickened you must see them.

DOCKSTADER'S NEW JOKES

They Are Up to Date and Deal Largely With the Stirring Topics of the Times.

Here are some jokes by Lew Dockstader at the Century:

Lew is not a believer in trusts, yet he views the giant octopus philosophically.

"There's the lead trust," he said, "the iron trust and the whisky trust, but I can't get anything free. Then there's the corset trust. McKinley is opposed to that because he doesn't like anti-expansion."

"Who's my choice for President?" asks Lew.

"Why Dewey, and Joe Wheeler for second place, with the American flag for a platform."

There is applause and then he adds:

"Well, they'd have to have more votes than that to be elected."

"Just before Dewey came to New York," remarked Lew, "there was going to be a yacht race. Well, George's arrival took all the wind out of Columbia's sails. But as soon as Billy Bryan started Eastward there was a race."

"I took my mother-in-law to the show yesterday and she half died laughing."

"Don't suppose you'll take her again," interposed a black member.

"Oh, yes; I'll just have her there to-morrow to finish the job."

"My girl is a 'beaut,'" soliloquizes Lew. "She is so pretty and patriotic."

"How's that?" asks Tenbrooke.

"Why she is a daughter of the revolution. Her father owns a merry-go-round."

The subject of grass widows entails considerable discussion. Lew confesses in his explanation that she must be a sister to the grass hopper. He is finally enlightened as to the meaning. "Why," he comments, "my sister has had four husbands leave her. I guess she must be a bale of hay."

Primrose tells about his experience with the talkative barber. "He asked how things were going. I replied all right and inquired if he had been up to see my show. He stropped his razor and replied that he had never heard of it. Asked him if he missed Adam and Eve. He had never remembered having seen them play in St. Louis.

"Well, into the barber shop soon came an Irishman. He was apparently feeling happy and fell asleep in the chair. A monkey was on his lap when he woke up. Pat looked at the dear animal in a myatified way, then remarked that he was all right, but his father would have to shave him."

Dockstader "joshes" Tenbrooke about his claims to be a hero. That you are, declared. "I am a lifesaver." Tenbrooke declared. "I saw a woman's head protruding from the waves. I jumped in and swam ashore. It was her switch."

"Did you take off the medals?"

"N—"

"And your a life saver. Your a train-wrecker, that's what you are, a wart, a zero mark with the rim torn off—you're full of gasoline—you hair restorer."

"There's going to be universal war," exclaims Lew. "There's the Philippines already. Then the South African scrap, while all the Southern Republics are combining against the United States. Here in St. Louis Oom Paul Ziegenhein and the Boers of St. Louis County are massing. We are on the eve of a terrible battle and preparations for the conflict are on everywhere. Only this morning the folks next door got in an eight-pounder."

PATRONS PAY DRINKS

THEATERS OPEN WHERE LIQUOR IS THE ENTRANCE FEE.

ALL OFFICIALS ARE IGNORANT.

Persistent and Flagrant Violations of Both the Newberry and the Downing Laws.

Theaters which rely upon the sale of drinks to pay their expenses are being operated in St. Louis.

They can be reached only through saloons and the purchase of drinks is one of the conditions on which patrons are permitted to see the show. At two of these places music is employed to draw a crowd. The third is advertised as a "Concert hall."

One of these places is at Sixth and Spruce streets, another on Seventh, a few doors south of Walnut street, and the other at Sixth and Market streets.

Theaters which violated the Newberry and Downing laws were once closed by the police. Those now operating are doing so by virtue of licenses issued by License Commissioner Kalbfell. They sell drinks under licenses issued by Excise Commissioner Higgins. They remain open by permission of the police.

Excise Commissioner Higgins recently began a crusade against music in saloons.

Every afternoon and evening music is played at the front door of two of these saloons with theater attachments. The bands consist of a cornet, a trombone, a snare drum and a bass drum. There is more noise than harmony, and the sound can be heard for blocks.

The old method of running these theaters was to require patrons to buy a drink, the purchase entitling him to admission to the theater. This was in direct violation of the Newberry and Downing laws, which forbade the selling of drinks in a theater.

Officials of the Police Department acknowledge that they do not know whether these three theaters are being operated in violation of the law. Excise Commissioner Higgins says he doesn't know. License Commissioner Kalbfell says he doesn't know.

Chief Campbell was asked Friday whether these theaters were complying with the law.

"I don't know a thing about them," he said. "That is a matter that is in the hands of the License Commissioner, Mr. Kalbfell. I presume they have obtained theater licenses in the regular way. This department has not yet received any complaint against them. If they have been requiring patrons to buy drinks they have been violating the law. I have received no complaint about these places. Of course, you know people around those neighborhoods are pretty much of the same stripe. I will investigate these places at once."

Lieut. Johnson, in command of the Central District, said: "I do not know how those places are operating. I know they are open, but I have not received any complaint against them."

Excise Commissioner Higgins said: "Yes, I understand there is music at those saloons, but these church people asked me to stop music only in the district between Twelfth and Twentieth streets and Washington and Clark avenues. If these theaters depend on drinks for their income, or if drinks are sold in the theaters, they are violating the law. I shall consult Chief Campbell about it at once."

License Commissioner Kalbfell said: "The government of these places rests with the police. I do not know how they are run. When a petition for a theatrical license, signed by the required number of residents in the block, is handed to me I am legally bound to issue the license. Until I am notified by the police that a place is being run in violation of the law I cannot revoke a license."

GATHERED AT GEN. FARRAR'S.

Congressmen From St. Louis Were Given a Reception.

An assemblage of some 300 men prominent locally in politics and the professions, appeared at the home of Gen. Bernard G. Farrar Thursday night at a reception given by the general in honor of St. Louis' national representatives, Congressman Fearee, Joy and Barthold.

The reception was purely informal and ostensibly a social meeting only, although the speeches tended to give it the color of an Administration ratification.

There were members of both parties present, but the Democrats were a small minority.

Gen. Farrar welcomed his guests individually and his son, B. C. Farrar, presented each to the Congressmen. The early part of the evening was spent in informal discussions of affairs of the times.

Following salads and ice cream about 11 o'clock, Gen. Farrar addressed the company from a chair, thanking the distinguished visitirs for the honor of their visit. He introduced the Congressmen in turn, each of whom made a speech favoring the Government's war policy.

Mayor Ziegenhein handled the Philippine question to the amusement of his hearers.

Col. D. P. Dyer and Major William Warner were among the other speakers.

BABY ITCHED SIX YEARS

Body Covered with Humor. Legs Down to Knees a Solid Scab. Five Doctors and Medical College Could not Cure. Father SPENT ONE THOUSAND DOLLARS Trying to get Him Cured. Old Friend Suggested CUTICURA. Sleep and Rest on First Application. Now Completely Cured.

My son, when he was six weeks old, had a breaking out on the top of his head. It spread all over his head, and then his arms broke out from shoulder to wrist. Around his body and around his legs from his knees to his ankles, was a solid scab. My family doctor treated him for eighteen months, but no good was accomplished. I tried four more, and then a medical college in St. Louis six months. No good yet. Spent not less than a thousand dollars in money and time. Old Mr. Barney Clap insisted on my trying Cuticura remedies, telling me he had a spell like my child's himself. By the time my wife had used the Cuticura (ointment) up, he began to improve and got so he could sleep short naps, and gave me and wife some rest. Thank the Lord, he is well now, fat, hearty, and stout as any boy, after six long years of itching, crying, and worrying. Cuticura remedies cured him.

POLO PONIES FOR HORSE SHOW.

Country Club Members Will Ride Their Own Animals.

At the horse show this year members of the swell Country Club's polo team will ride their own ponies in the polo pony class.

This is an innovation, as in former years professional riders were engaged to ride the ponies, but this year President Corwin H. Spencer thought that society would be greatly interested to see the swell youths ride and show their own horses, so he made it a rule that no entry would be received in the polo pony class unless the pony belonged to a member of a legitimate polo team and that the owners of the ponies would do the riding themselves.

Thirteen entries have been made to the class and all of the owners have consented to ride their own animals.

Flirt, the pony that showed up so well last year, will be shown by W. D. Simmons. J. W. Scudder has entered Montgomery, a diminutive pony that has the knack of following the ball down to a nicety. J. L. Boland has Ben T. entered, and Tart will represent C. E. Scudder. J. T. Drew has a pair of lively ponies in Sunset and Swirl, and he says the pony that beats his representatives will get the blue. C. Hodgman depends on Gad Fly and Ballet Dancer to carry off the honors.

E. C. Simmons has Buttons entered and O. C. Mersman will send his pair, Pomery and Yellow Kid, after the ribbon. Herbert Walker has Tommy Atkins entered again. Tommy Atkins showed up in fine style last year, and having the benefit of another year's training, he should be hard to beat this year.

A. E. Ashbrook of Kansas City will show Mr. Pickwick. Ashbrook is considered one of the best riders of polo ponies in this part of the country.

THEY FORCED HIM TO THE WALL

Henry Reinstedler Finally Gave a Chattel Deed of Trust.

Henry Reinstedler, who gave a chattel deed of trust Thursday on his implement business, at 1104 to 1108 North Third street, to Edward Koenig as trustee for creditors, says he thinks his assets will more than pay his liabilities. The liabilities are over $63,000, but he claims the property he transferred to the trustee is worth over $100,000.

Reinstedler, who is one of the oldest implement dealers in the city, says the demands of his creditors, who were determined to carry their claims into the courts, forced the deed of trust upon him. He claims they refused to be pacified with his promises that he would pay as soon as collections could be made, but declared they must have their money immediately.

MR CHAMBERLAIN'S CONFESSION.

Mr. Chamberlain's defense in the House of Commons was not creditable to himself or his cause. It was evasive and failed utterly to set forth any reason in justice for driving the Boers to war. He appealed to British greed and pleaded policy. The meat of his defense was embodied in one sentence:

"The Transvaal and the Free State have an ideal which is dangerous to Great Britain."

What is the ideal of these Republics? Independence. What is the menace of this ideal to Great Britain? Not Great Britain's safety or prosperity, but her policy of aggrandizement, her ambition to own Africa.

Here is the real cause of war—imperial aggrandizement and commercial greed. This is the motive of the Chamberlain-Rhodes conspiracy to use the power of the British Empire to crush the Boer Republics.

The British Queen is averse to war. The American President encourages it. How strange!

WELCOME TO THE CRYSANTHEMUM.

All lovers of flowers are glad to see the first chrysanthemums and to be told that the display this fall is to be rich and varied.

In the chrysanthemum Japan gave to the world full value for the gifts of modern civilization. What would our cities do without this beautiful, many-hued flower, in the dark autumn days? Let us hope that its culture is not merely a fad. What flower, at this season, could take its place?

The chrysanthemum ought to be forever popular, because of its essentially feminine characteristics. In many respects the chrysanthemums and the ladies correspond in a wonderful way. The variety and beauty of both gentle sex and flower are infinite. We all knew that the perfect appearance of either has not been without its cost. And we all know that lady and flower respond generously to devotion.

Chrysanthemums, in full bloom, inevitably remind one of pretty bonnets and luxuriant hair. That is why so many coats that cover masculine bosoms are bright with these blossoms when they are at their best.

The Louisville and Nashville Railroad in Kentucky would fight a Republican nominee, just as it is fighting a Democratic nominee, if the Republican should refuse to serve the road.

PUBLIC HIGHWAYS CAPTURED.

If public highways are to be saved for the public, the authorities of St. Louis County must be up and doing.

The Lindell and Suburban are now fighting in Clayton for the possession of Central avenue and its extension. The Lindell had a franchise and laid a single track. The Suburban obtained a franchise along the same road, but the Lindell stole a march on its competitor, and Saturday night laid another track. If the Suburban people put down their rails, a single track, as they say they will, the road will be fully occupied and the farmers can drive through the woods.

In other words, the farmers of St. Louis County have built a roadbed for two franchise-grabbing corporations to fight over. The taxpayers' money went into the road, but the electric companies are in possession. If the farmers feel the need of a highway they can build it.

It is not possible in this country to take private property for public use without due compensation. But it is the easiest thing in the world, if you know the trick, to take public property for private use without any compensation.

If his father has cut off Cornelius Vanderbilt with less than $10,000,000, it is very sad. Perhaps the poor boy has been thrown upon the cold world with not more than $9,500,000. It is difficult to comprehend the heartlessness of a parent who leaves any of his offspring with so small a sum at a time when prices are rising in all directions.

THE WEST'S UNDEVELOPED RESOURCES.

Mr. William V. Byars' article in the Sunday Post-Dispatch, showing the enormous productiveness of the Central West, is a most suggestive paper. Let the reader study this and the accompanying map carefully. It is well worth it.

This region is the richest mineral field in the world. It is practically inexhaustible.

This graphic presentation of a most important fact suggests a question. The productive resources of the country are all that can be desired. Why are they not developed? Obviously because consumption is not great enough. But how can this be said in face of the fact that thousands if not millions are in need of this natural wealth?

Here is a question for politicians who think. Increase consumption and production will be stimulated. That is, the supply is ample to meet the greatest possible demand. Political economists should investigate this curious maladjustment. The question isn't loaded. Not even trust-supported colleges would object to a serious study of this kind.

It is amusing to read that the Postmaster General has issued a formal warning to all postmasters against the levy of political assessments, and that simultaneously the Civil Service Commission has called attention to the law governing the subject and the commission's intention to enforce it. Mr. Hanna will proceed with the "voluntary" contribution business, and the clerk or employe who shall refuse to contribute will soon find himself out of a job.

WAR AND INVESTMENTS.

The Queen has called out the reserves and the militia, and rumors are rife of complications involving England with some of the continental powers.

They are probably without foundation in truth. Naturally the English want to guard against all contingencies, but a great war is not likely to grow out of the South African trouble.

It should be remembered that war is waged on credit. Not a nation of Europe can enter upon a struggle without borrowing, and the lenders realize that public debts are about as heavy as can be borne. To add to the weight would be to invite domestic disorder and perhaps convulsion. That is the opinion of M. de Bloch, whose book is said to have frightened the Czar into Quakerism and induced that monarch to call the peace conference.

The men who hold the purse-strings control the governments. The specter of social discontent is constantly before their eyes. They are a strong conservative force which at all times makes for peace. Rumors of war are, for the most part, empty speculation, because there is no money in it for men who are looking for safe investments; and these are the men who practically dictate European policy.

Col. Bill Phelps announces that he is a candidate for delegate-at-large to next year's Democratic national convention. If this isn't gall with a capital G, then we are no judge. Just how Bill Phelps would look standing on a platform declaring against trusts and combines is beyond comprehension. It would be a disgrace to the Missouri Democracy, but unless the people look after the matter he stands a good show of being elected, as his free passes have a wonderful effect.—Lexington News.

Perhaps Col. Phelps imagines that because Gov. Stephens signed the bill that created a great street railway trust, the combines may as well be represented in the national convention by Phelps as by Stephens.

CHANCELLOR HILL ON TRUSTS.

Chancellor Hill of the Georgia State University is not the only man who holds that trusts, being "evoked naturally and inevitably from modern business conditions" cannot be destroyed by legislation. All the trusts apologists hold that view. Because monopoly is, therefore it is right and impregnable.

The abuses that resulted in the downfall of Feudalism had been "evoked naturally and inevitably" from medieval conditions. Yet those abuses and the entire Feudal system fell when the time was ripe.

All the abominations of child labor and the frightfully unsanitary factory life of the early years of the nineteenth century were "evoked naturally and inevitably" in the evolution of modern industrialism. Yet these things are passing away under the pressure of public opinion and wise legislation.

It is "natural and inevitable" that wolves should prey upon sheep, as long as they are permitted to do so. A time comes, however, when it is just as natural and inevitable for the wolves to be slain and the sheep protected.

The American people will never consent to be crushed, under the plea that monopoly and its accompanying tyranny are a natural growth and inevitable condition. They have been accustomed to lop off noxious growths and change unendurable conditions. They will do so with the trusts when they awake to the necessity of action.

The farce of electing Presidents and Congresses that are controlled by trusts will have to cease before the trusts can be controlled.

HANNA'S FRANKNESS.

Senator Hanna is getting discouraged. "If you don't like the Republican candidate," he tells the Ohio voters, "vote for the Democrat. They are the only two candidates running."

This cannot be interpreted as meaning that Jones is a weak candidate. Rather it appears that Hanna fears the golden rule man, and rather than see him elected or poll a large vote prefers the election of McLean.

This is certainly a compliment to Jones. If partisans bury their differences rather than permit the success of the new idea they must think there is something in it.

"President Kruger may live to regret the day that he locked horns with such a strong team as John Bull and Gen. Buller," says an Administration organ. The day will never come when Uncle Paul will regret any sacrifice for his country. He will take the Bull by the horns, and, whether he wins or not, he will be honored for his dourage and patriotism.

An Administration organ says we must admire the heroism of the Orange Free State. How about the Filipino, who is making just such a fight as the Orange Free State expects to make? Is independence in South Africa a different thing from independence in the Philippines? Mr. Bull, at least, doesn't think it is.

Congressman Pearce regrets that he is not young enough to go to the Philippines to fight the Filipinos. It is to be regretted that all the imperialists cannot go there and do the fighting. They should not only do the fighting but pay the enormous expense of a wholly unnecessary war.

When the fact is stated that our war expansion will create 15,000 new Federal offices, we can't be quite certain that Ohio will not vote overwhelmingly for it. The Republican spellbinders in the Buckeye State will do well to enlarge upon this great increase of Federal pap.

A New Jersey court has ruled that a teacher cannot be sued for neglecting to teach a pupil, however well the teacher may be paid. Any old kind of injustice passes for justice in New Jersey, and it is much the same in some other States.

The President's constant appeals for the flag reveal his consciousness of the weakness of his Philippine policy. He expects loyalty to the flag to blind the whole people to the shortcomings of his administration.

When Aguinaldo was our ally he gave the American newspaper correspondents a crew of five for their boat at Manila. The incident shows how friendly the feeling there was between Filipinos and Americans.

Our gallant officers and brave men continue to fall in a needless war in the Philippines because the Administration was so foolish as to pay $20,000,000 to Spain for a country of which she was not master.

Mr. Bull employed savages to aid him in crushing out liberty in America. He is now employing savages to crush it out in the South African Republics.

The great cost of transporting troops to the Philippines is a continuous object lesson in the folly of grabbing territory that is 10,000 miles away.

The young men of France want to join the Boers. If there is a Lafayette among them he should start for the Dutch republics at once.

We do not love Great Britain less in appealing to her for peace in the Transvaal. We shall love her more if peace is preserved.

If the wild waves get to saying Dewey and Schley, Mr. Hanna himself will be wild.

POST-DISPATCH SNAP SHOTS.

The Boers at Ingogo are doubtless ready to "go in."

The milk famine can be borne so long as there is no water famine.

England will give Oom Paul dumdum bullets for his gold and diamonds.

Aguinaldo is not so much a Washington as Mr. McKinley is a King George.

Ex-Speaker Reed will be interested, perhaps, in the President's remark that in this country the humblest may aspire to the highest place.

Spanish soldiers are aiding us in the Philippines. Possibly they consider that things are just about the same as they were before the close of the Spanish war.

Even the awful Jack Chinn is reported peaceful and lamblike in the Kentucky campaign. Possibly, with all the talk about knives and pistols, nobody is to be killed.

A palmist says Uncle Henry will live to be 96 years old and have a brilliant political future. Possibly Uncle Henry will reform some day and seek to undo what he has done to the detriment of the city.

Gov. Bradley of Kentucky is said to model himself after Roscoe Conkling, but it is likely that no politician will ever successfully imitate Mr. Conkling's celebrated turkey-gobbler strut, which made so deep an impression upon James G. Blaine.

NEW HORROR FOR TORCHLIGHT PARADE.

The horrors of a Presidential campaign are to be multiplied. An Oklahoma inventor has designed something new for the torchlight paraders. The novelty consists of a papier mache representation of the face of the favorite candidate and this, is fastened to the torch, swinging below it. Between the torch and this counterfeit face are two cymbals, one being loosely mounded.

CHINAMEN WITH CIVIC PRIDE.

The Chinamen of Kansas City deserve the heartiest compliments for the part they took in the parade of the Carnival Crew yesterday afternoon. Oriental colors and decorations are always highly effective, but, aside from the excellence of their show, the spirit manifested by the Chinamen in joining with the community and taking a part, and doing it so handsomely and well, was an exceedingly pleasant feature of the day. The Chinese division ought to be an indispensable feature of all future parades given by the Carnival Crew.

STAUNCH OLD WITNESS TREE.

In a recent resurvey of the line between Clay and Platte Counties, Surveyors Montague and Leitch found a mulberry tree that was made a line witness tree in 1819. It was then four inches in diameter, and is now only about six inches. It is a scrubby tree that stands on a rocky point. It has stood the storms well and seems sound and healthy yet. The scar from the blaze made in 1819 is still apparent. Old woodmen say the tree is over 100 years old.

AN IMMENSE MUSHROOM.

H. J. Brooks of 2306 James avenue, north, treated the Minneapolis Mushroom Club to a genuine surprise last night in the form of a mushroom 41 inches in circumference and weighing 7 pounds and 13 ounces, which he found near Hamil recently. The mushroom was on exhibition last night for a few minutes at Voegeli's drugstore and resembled a huge pumpkin more than anything else. It was pronounced the largest of its species ever seen.—Minneapolis Times.

JUST IN TIME. TO-DAY'S LOVE STORY.

IT WAS to cure herself of a hopeless passion that Helen Brown left the city and its vanities for her Aunt Julia's farmhouse. She had fallen in love with a man who ignored her very existence, although she was beautiful and an heiress.

The quiet life on the farm gave her too much time to think, so when she heard that the position of under teacher was vacant in the country school she applied for the place and won it.

She expected to find her master a lubberly rustic, who wrote poetry for the town paper, and was rather surprised when he turned out to be a young man of intellect, with a refined face.

How he dressed she was never quite sure, for when she was in his company she never thought of it, and when she tried to think about it afterward she could not remember.

If it was homespun then homespun must be a particularly becoming style of cloth for a gentleman, and no man was ever more suitably dressed than Arthur Church.

"And he's superior to any one I have ever met—superior to them all!" she declared aloud, in the solitude of her walk homeward. "Once, at least, I will say that to my own heart, for though I do not love him, I can at least appreciate his worth. Love him? Ah! If I only dared. I could! I could! Oh, what am I saying? In love with two men in the course of six months. Impossible. It would be too contemptible."

And now as the pink flush upon her cheek grew scarlet, and despite the fact that she despised herself for it, a strange and delightful joy thrilled Miss Brown at the remembrance of certain glances she had received from the eyes of her fellow-teacher, and though her own coldness had frozen those looks, though her haughty composure had rebuked the words that almost trembled on his lips and died unspoken, Helen knew that Arthur Church loved her and would some time say so despite all her coldness.

Slower and slower her steps had grown, into a reverie, the pleasure of which had made everything else forgotten. All unheeded, the warning bell clanged afar in the clear air, and onward, nearer and nearer, came the puffing monster, scattering smoke and grime and fiery sparks in its wake.

As in a dream Helen heard her name called; a choking, maddening cry was in her ears; as she looked up the great fiery eye of the down express seemed blazing in her face. Two strong arms encircled and dragged her back; an agonized voice whispered:

"Nellie! Nellie! My own—my darling! Thank God, not too late!"

And then everything was darkness and silence.

When Miss Brown returned to consciousness the train was far out of sight, her head was supported on Mr. Church's left arm, while his right hung limp beside him, and his face, pale as the snowbank they leaned against, was bending anxiously over her.

"You are hurt! O, Arthur!" And then tears and blushes swept away all Miss Brown's haughtiness and cool composure. "You have risked your life for me! How could you do it? O, Arthur! dear Arthur! Why did you do it?"

"My darling, it is only a broken arm, and to hear you say 'Dear Arthur' in that tone and with that look I would have been broken all to pieces. My darling! My Nellie!"

And now the gentleman teacher, as Aunt Julia said, had to give up, too; and it really seemed as if fate was against the district school that first winter. But Miss Brown said "No," and since the season was so nearly over any way, the school should not be closed, for she would teach both boys and girls till Mr. Church's arm was better and he could come back and resume his place, which he did very soon, with his arm in a sling and looking very pale; and on meeting Miss Brown he seemed to grow even paler and unaccountably shy.

But Helen laughed merrily, and whispered at the first opportunity:

"You are not angry with me, Arthur! And it was too mean for Aunt Julia to tell, any way."

"It is a penal offense getting goods under false pretenses," said Arthur, "and people will say I have sold my heart, Nellie."

"They cannot say you have sold it cheap, any way, for I am awfully rich," was the gay answer. "But, indeed, dear, I can't help being an heiress, and you must forgive me."

"Could not your father leave the money to some one else?"

"He might endow a home for wornout teachers, I suppose, and even then we would finally get the benefit of it. But, after all, dearest, what matter who has the money? Am I not worth loving for myself alone?"

"That you are, my darling. Despite all the money in the world, and for yourself alone, I take you."

How To Be Beautiful.

Harriet Hubbard Ayer Gives Post-Dispatch Lady Readers More Valuable Advice.

Written for the Post-Dispatch.

WE ARE not all born beautiful. Indeed, my dear readers, you may take my word for it, that the most famous beauties of the world have had to conquer a number of shortcomings in order to be physically of paramount loveliness.

Very few women are born with perfect features according to the standards of artistic rules; but every woman can make herself attractive to look upon, and I do not make any exceptions, for positively I have never seen any one who could not.

The four important points to be studied are, first, the complexion, because if you have every other gift of the gods and are afflicted with a pimply face you cannot be good to look at. Next to the skin in importance is the teeth; then the figure and hair.

About sixty women out of one hundred have noticably bad skins. This seems a wholesale assertion, but I do not make it offhand. I constantly take notes on this subject, because I think the American woman's complexion of paramount importance, and I am convinced that as a nation our complexions are our weakest point. A woman's complexion usually tells the story of her digestive apparatus very clearly.

When the blood circulates properly the organs act regularly and healthfully and the subject understands and practices systematically the bathing and scrubbing regimen to keep the complexion brilliant and fair, the result is clear enough and the skin of milk and roses is there to speak for itself.

Improper diet is one of the causes, and the chief one, for pimply faces and all the innumerable blemishes that come under the general heads of acne and eczema.

Sweets, stimulants, greasy pies and cakes, all the pet abominations of the lunch counter, are at the bottom of many and a tale of perplexity and woe that daily find their way to my desk.

No one diet will ever suit a thousand, nor yet a dozen persons. But when a poor, overloaded, badly treated stomach throws out signals of distress and revolt in a crop of horrid little pimples, it is a sure, never-failing sign that the diet is at fault.

Girls, and matrons as well, who want pretty skins may find it difficult to give up the sweet and sticky dishes they dote upon, but unless they do give them up they must stand the consequences.

Eat fruits, green vegetables, salads, coarse breads, cereals and drink lots of hot water if you want fair, fine skins.

Regular, systematic bathing with a pure soap and the friction only to be had from the flesh and camel's hair face brush are the outward aids to a lovely complexion.

In these days of artistic dentistry no woman need have crooked or decayed teeth, but inasmuch as we do not enjoy getting our teeth repaired it is well to take such daily care of them as will preserve them intact to the longest possible time.

The selection of a toothbrush is important. Choose one of medium price, not too stiff, but with fairly long, searching bristles.

It is of the utmost importance that the teeth should receive care after each meal, and every particle of food that has collected between them should be removed by the aid of dental floss, a spool of which can be purchased for a trifle at any apothecary's.

Brush the teeth at least twice each day. Brush up and down, not across, which, in time, wears the enamel. Use a weak solution of hydrozone and water to thoroughly rinse the mouth and teeth once a day.

Don't try to save money by going to a cheap dentist.

Take care of your hair as you would of any other precious possession. Keep it soft and brilliant and free from dandruff and dust by frequent shampooing.

Scalp massage is a most beneficial treatment and will often restore the scalp circulation, make dry hair soft and glossy by inducing the proper flow of natural oils and generally tone up the hair.

When it comes to her figure it has been proved beyond cavil that a woman in fair health can, if she wishes to do so, reduce her weight without drugs or heroics three pounds a week until she reaches the weight suited to her height. Diet and physical exercise in the open air comprise the regimen. Thin women are usually very nervous, and nerves are more difficult to treat than avoirdupois, but if she will learn not to worry and will eat the right food the thin woman can acquire the necessary flesh to give her curves in place of angles.

Whoever the woman is, where she is and whatever her calling or station in life, she will be happier by making the best of her looks. HARRIET HUBBARD AYER.

Beware of Frauds.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

There are quite a number of fakers in this city advertising for ladies of refinement or good form for high-salaried positions. Now I hope the ladies will beware of them, for if you are anyways refined or well-built, they will undoubtedly exert their influence over you—call it hypnotizing, if you will—and make you do just as they wish you to. Not alone that, but take your jewelry that is worth anything. Take my advice and beware. Sorrowfully,

In Regard to Social Settlements.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

There is an article in the Self-Culture Magazine of March, '99, entitled "Life in a Social Settlement"—Hull House, Chicago—which ought to interest all wage-earners. The time is ripe for such an institution in this city. What is to hinder? Let's hear from others on the subject.

Young Men's Club.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The letter in yesterday's Post-Dispatch headed "Young Men's Literary Club Wanted," makes a good suggestion. A vacant store in the most populous district might be rented temporarily, and until better arrangements could be made the club could move from place to place, as the exigencies might require. About the only restrictions upon its discussions should be those of decency and decorum. Perhaps religion and politics should be omitted from the list of subjects to be discussed.

Prominent men could be induced to take an occasional hand, and other means could be used to make it interesting. I should have in mind the Spartan public tables in the time of Lycurgus, and would suggest that it be called the Phiditia Club. Let's start it. TAXPAYER.

Another Club Supporter.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I am in hearty accord with the sentiments of a St. Louis youth that a young men's literary club is badly needed. I am surprised that there should be one missing in this, so great a city. But I am sure that with the help of the Post-Dispatch, the people's paper, one can be organized that would be a pride to the city. Will not a St. Louis youth and others that may be interested in this set the ball a rolling by addressing M. USE.

A Spiritualist's Advice.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

With your kind permission, I would respectfully offer "Investigator" a word of advice. If you would have genuine spiritual manifestations, seek them in private family circles that have their own mediums—and there are dozens of them in St. Louis—where you are not required to plank down a dollar or 50 cents. There are fakirs galore masquerading under the banner of spiritualism, I am ashamed to acknowledge, but there must be something genuine before it can be counterfeited, and the truth is always obtainable. Self-respecting spiritualists scorn the Punch and Judy attachments of so-called mediums that advertise themselves for money. If spirits can materialize, they do not require ghastly black cloth mummeries.

Genuine mediums do "invite tests," and cheerfully submit to the severest conditions imposed upon them. And why not? If they are not frauds, what have they to fear? A SPIRITUALIST.

The Cider Problem.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Answer to cider problem in to-day's Post-Dispatch:

First fill the three-gallon cask and then empty it into the five-gallon cask, which will now hold two gallons more. Again fill the three-gallon cask and from it finish filling the five-gallon cask; one gallon will then remain in the three-gallon cask. Now empty the five-gallon cask into eight-gallon cask; now put the remaining one gallon from the three into the five-gallon cask and refill the three-gallon cask from the eight-gallon cask, which, with the one gallon that is in the five-gallon cask, makes four gallons. Animals Wiser Than Men.

From the Humane Alliance.

Illusions, according to a man in the show business, are all right with which to fool men, but they don't fool animals.

"A few years ago," he narrated this man from his own experience, "I had what is known as a 'mystic maze,' at the Nashville Exposition. It was simply a small room filled with mirrors so arranged that you seemed to be in a narrow corridor full of turns. It was puzzling, and I used to get lost in the place myself, but it never bothered my dog a moment. He would run through it from end to end at full speed and never bump against a mirror.

"I saw something in the same line in Frisco not long ago. A friend of mine had an illusion called a haunted swing. You get in what seems to be an ordinary swing, hung in the centre of a good-sized room, and the thing begins to move. It goes back and forth and finally clear over the top—that is to say, it seems to. What really turns around is the room itself—the swing stands perfectly still. It is a good illusion, and when the room is revolved rapidly there never was a man who could keep his head in the swing. It seems as if he must certainly pitch out, and if the motion is kept up he gets deathly sick. But a pet cat belonging to a friend used to lie on the seat and never turn a hair, no matter how fast the thing was worked."

The elder Herrmann said that animals were never deceived by false table legs built up with looking glasses and used in stage tricks. They simply passed around on the other side.

THE CHINESE PUPIL.

When Little Floy, the China boy,
Appeared and took his seat,
The teacher was surprised to view
A lad so very neat.
His eye was bright, his manner light,
His smile a touch of spring.
"He good," the happy teacher said,
"To little Floy Sing."

He smiled, he did, this Chinese kid,
In neatest clothes arrayed,
And laughed inside his boyish sleeve
To see the hit he'd made;
And he was just as happy as
A bird upon the wing
When the teacher bade them all be good
To little Floy Sing.

SPORTS OF THE DAY

MANY BOXERS HERE.

THEY COME TO TAKE PART IN THE LOCAL TOURNAMENTS.

STIFT, CHICAGO MIDDLEWEIGHT

He Arrived Friday Morning and Joe Choynski Will Get In From the East on Sunday.

There will soon be a lot of famous pugilists in St. Louis.

Little Steve Flanagan of Philadelphia, who is to meet Casper Leon in a 25-round bout in the Coliseum, has been here all week.

Billy Stift, the Chicago middleweigh, who is to meet Kid McCoy in the same place, arrived from Chicago Friday morning.

Joe Choynski is looked for Sunday morning and he comes to meet Dick Moore at the St. Louis Athletic Club's entertainment in the Fourteenth Street Theater next Monday night.

Moore, Choynski's opponent, has been training in the St. Louis suburbs the past two weeks and is now in fine shape.

The showing he made against Jack Steitzner when he was not in condition proves that Moore is one of the gamest of boxers, and one who in condition should prove a dangerous opponent to any of the leading heavyweights.

Joe Choynski, who is to appear in St. Louis on Monday night, on Friday night boxes 20 rounds in New York with Australian Jimmy Ryan. Immediately after that battle Choynski will leave for St. Louis and if nothing happens he will be here Sunday morning.

Tommy Hogan, the clever lightweight boxer, who fought a 20-round battle with Martin Flaherty at the last entertainment given by the St. Louis Athletic Club, is also here. He and Billy Lambert will on Monday evening furnish the curtain raiser to the Choynski-Moore bout. Lambert is the boy who gave Eddie Lally, the local lightweight, two very lively arguments last winter. When in shape he is a very good man and having trained hard for this contest he and Hogan should make a very pretty "mill" of it.

This Friday night will be a busy one in pugilistic circles, these bouts being scheduled to take place: Joe Choynski versus "Australian Jimmy" Ryan, 20 rounds, Broadway Athletic Club, New York; Harry Forbes versus Tim Callahan, six rounds, Fort Dearborn Athletic Club, Chicago; George Kirwan versus Tim Kearns, 20 rounds, Louisville, Ky.; Sig. Hart versus "Australian Billy" Murphy, 15 rounds, Sioux City, Io.

Ruhlin and Jeffords meet before the Broadway Athletic Club in New York next Tuesday night.

Elated by his victory last Tuesday night over Pat Ready, Dan Creedon announces that he wants to meet either Kid McCoy or Joe Walcott again.

Word comes from San Francisco that Pugilist Peter Jackson has passed the critical stage of pneumonia and is on the fair road to recovery.

Sammy Harris, the clever bantam, says that he is ready to give Caspar Leon a return match before any club offering a suitable purse. Sammy defeated Leon in a six-round bout last winter.

WORK OF THE PITCHERS.

Hughes, Orth and Hahn Lead the League in Winning Games.

Pitchers' records for the season just ended show some interesting details. According to tables, including every twirler who has officiated in 15 games or more, Hughes and Orth of Brooklyn and Philadelphia, respectively, are tied for the lead in percentage of victories. Willis of Boston allowed fewer runs per game to be made off his delivery than any other pitcher. The steadiest pitching was that of Young, who gave but 43 bases on balls in 42 games, and the wildest that of Bates—118 passes in 21 games. Seymour struck out 142 men in 32 games, the best record in this respect, while Cunningham, a good and steady man, fanned only 34 men in 36 games. The hardest worked pitchers were Leever and Carrick, 43 games aplece, and the worst pitcher in the League was Bates—worst in every department of the game. Dunn has the finest fielding record of the tribe. The figures:

JEFFRIES' INJURED ARM.

It Is Better and Will Be All Right by Nov. 3.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Champion James J. Jeffries will be constantly under the care of a physician from now until he enters the ring to fight Sharkey Nov. 3. Dr. Henry W. Fraeunthal, assistant to Dr. Sayre, left to-night for Allenhurst, N. J., and will remain at the champion's training quarters and assist in looking after his physical needs. Primarily the doctor is to treat daily the injured arm and in addition he will advise the trainers and help put the Californian in the pink of condition.

Manager Bray has decided that a pugilist in training should have a physician at his quarters at all times. Had there been one there last Monday week, when Jeffries was hurt, the injury would not have proved so serious, as proper treatment would have been given at once. Such an error will not be allowed to occur again.

Jeffries' arm is improving rapidly. He says he will be in good condition Nov. 3, when he expects to dispose of Sharkey's championship aspirations. The champion came up from his training quarters to-day to have his arm treated by Dr. Sayre. The doctor was surprised by the wonderful improvement. After massaging and steaming the arm he declared that it would be in good shape for the contest.

Jeffries returned to his training quarters at noon well satisfied with his condition. He will not come to the city again until the day of the fight.

"My arm is just a trifle stiff," he said, "but now that the bandage has been removed I will try to use it gradually and work it into shape again. The change of date suits me and I will be better long before that date. So far as my arm is concerned I do not think it will cause me any inconvenience and I feel confident that I will be prepared to fight Nov. 3. You know a man who is training can do a great deal of good to himself in one week's time."

WITH THE RUGBY PLAYERS.

Mr. Lee, a Member of the East St. Louis Club, Rises to Explain.

The Missouri Tigers play the Nebraska University team at Lincoln, Neb., on Saturday.

Smith and Manual Training School teams meet at Pastime Park Saturday.

The Monmouth (Ill.) College Athletic Association has abandoned the Rugby team on account of the severe rules made by the faculty regarding studies for those engaged in athletics. The team has gone into every game short four or five of the best men, who had been "conditioned" without warning.

James M. Lee, who is a member of the East St. Louis football team, sends in the following to the Post-Dispatch over his own signature:

"In behalf of the East St. Louis High School Football team, I wish to correct a few misleading reports which have been put in circulation, concerning that organization. Unfortunately the last two games played by the team have both eneded in wrangles and both games fortified by one or the other team quitting the field. At East St. Louis, last Friday, the home team would not give into the wishes of Capt. Bischoff, of the second team of St. Louis High School, so the Missouri boys left the field. At Alton, last Saturday, the East Siders tackled the crack team of Western Military Academy, just twenty-four hours intervening between the two games, playing the Alton game a week before schedule simply to accommodate the cadets and then held them down to two touchdowns in the first half. Thirty seconds before time to begin the second half, the timekeepers apprised both captains that they had just half a minute in which to line up their men. The W. M. A. boys immediately ran into position and kicked off before Capt. Selter could called "ready" and of course he asked that the ball be kicked off again. But the cadets refused absolutely to do this, so Capt. Selter ordered his men to retire and forfeited the game to Alton. And yet some shortsighted, narrow minded persons, who can see no other but the teams of his own city, places a cartoon before the public which conveys the impression that we are a crowd of wind jammers and wranglers and in this way tries to injure our reputation."

THE ASSOCIATION PLAYERS.

Greater Rivalry Between Them This Year Than Ever Before.

There is greater rivalry between the association football players this year than ever before.

There is especially great rivalry between the West Ends, who were the St. Teresas last year and the Cycling Club which this year will have Dick Jarrett as its captain and leader.

Capt. Phil Kavanaugh of the West Ends said Thursday:

"My boys never wanted to beat anyone as bad as they want to beat the Cycling Club, but I shall insist on clean work this year from the beginning, and if there is any rowdyism or rough work on the field I am determined our boys will not be to blame for it. We want to win, but we will resort to only fair means to get there."

Captain Billy Kane and his young Shamrock team expect to make a good showing when they meet the C. B. C. boys on the college campus Sunday.

Tommy Painter and Fred Goodwin have been mentioned prominently as referees for Sunday's games in the St. Louis Football Association. They are good men and have had lots of experience in the association games.

While there has been all sorts of talk about the teams that are to take part in the games of the Association of Football Clubs of St. Louis, but little has been said of Joe Flood's C. B. C. boys. Joe, however, has a very high opinion of them. He said this morning:

"I think my boys will make all the others play real ball this year. In Maher and Baggot we have two of the greatest players in the business. Maher is a stout Irishman, just from Dublin, who knows all the fine points of the game and who will prove a great help to us as goalkeeper. Baggot will this year play at center forward and will strengthen us there greatly. Bryan and Dale will be our right and Cudmore and Barkhof our left forwards. As half backs we will have J. Dale, Zemblidge and Betts, and McManus and Swacina will be our full backs. Maher will look after the goal for us, taking care of that position as it has never been taken care of before in St. Louis.

TIPS FROM THE TURF.

President Aull and Supt. Cunningham Home From Their Holiday Trip.

Tom Nepper was at the Fair Grounds Thursday afternoon getting ready to ship Trioditxa and his other horses to the New Orleans meeting.

President Robert Aull of the St. Louis Fair Association arrived home from Arkansas last night. He spent two weeks fishing in the pine woods with big Jim Cunningham, the Fair Grounds superintendent, as his companion. The two brought back a lot of fish which they distributed among their many friends.

There are no fentures at the Latonia, Harlem and Oakland tracks, the only courses in operation on Friday afternoon.

They are telling all sorts of stories over at Latonia about the colt and filly owned by Pat Tomlinson of St. Louis. The colt, the Conqueror, they say was wanted by W. M. Rogers, who, according to the story, offered $900 cash for him. The yearling filly by Sir Dixon-Lady Beth, according to the story, was wanted by Sydney Paget, who offered $6000 for her.

Col. Jack Chinn will do the starting at Latonia this week, his son, Kit, who has been at work there, turning the flag over to him.

The Kimball Stake at Latonia went to Lieut. Gibson on Thursday afternoon, Kentucky Farmer was second and John Yerkes third.

This is an off day at Morris Park and in consequence there will be no racing in the East on Friday afternoon. Saturday the Morris Park meeting closes.

The first steeplechase brought off on the Cincinnati tracks in years will be seen at Latonia on Saturday afternoon.

Fred Foster is preparing Yellow Tail, the $10,000 prize he got on the Pacific coast last winter, and will start him Saturday at Harlem. Sam McKeever of the same string is said to be nearly ready.

There will be no racing at Harlem after the close of the present fortnight's sport, of which the present is the first week. The report that the officials of the Chicago course had about made up their minds to start another two weeks of racing at the close of the two weeks at Lakeside was flatly denied Thursday by General Manager John Condon. He said: "If we could be guaranteed fine weather we might try it, but the chances are it will be snowing before then, and we do not care for outdoor unreasonable sport. Besides that, I would not open here after a meeting at Lakeside. No, it is certain the meeting at Lakeside will close the local season as far as we are concerned."

Lockhart Bros., who own the bay gelding Astoir, will be requested by the Harlem judges to reconcile the performance of their animal Wednesday with his previous races. There was something uncanny about Astor's victory in the first event Wednesday. The conditions made the race look like a "set-up" for Potomac's brother, Great Bend, with a possible chance for Mistral II. to chase him out, but at the end there was nothing in the betting at odds as good as 150 to 1. Astor danced off by himself in the first part of the race, which was at one mile and 20 yards, and, making all his own running, finished well in hand a long way in front. Free Lady, another outsider, was the best of the huddled bunch, and Free Lady would have been closer to the winner if Jockey McIntyre had been better inclined. Great Bend was destitute of speed. Astor's win was a shock to the judges, who have placed him and his stable under investigation.

THE NATIONAL GAME.

SOME SPORTS MAY DIE, BUT IT GOES ON FOREVER.

GOOD PROOF GIVEN OF THIS.

The Board Cycle Track at Athletic Park Has Been Removed to Make Room for the Ball Players.

Many persons interested in cycling and baseball and football were at Athletic Park Thursday afternoon watching the transformation of that place from a cycling park to a football and baseball field.

A crowd of laborers have been at work out there all week tearing up and removing the big board cycle track, and Thursday night not a vestige of it remained.

The removal of the board track and the leveling of the field for baseball and football purposes appears to indicate that while some games may come and some may go, the national game of baseball and the winter pastime of football are destined to go on forever.

The removal of the cycling path and the transformation of Athletic Park from a cycle park to a baseball park marks a new era in the history of these grounds. In the sixties they were changed from a cornfield into a baseball park and the famous games between the St. Louis Unions and Empires were played on them.

In 1875 they were used by the original St. Louis Browns, which then included such great players as Miller, Bradley, Dehlman, McGeary, Pearce, Force, Houck, Cuthbert, Remsen and Chapman. In 1876, when the club went out of existence, the grounds were cut down and for four years they were used by the amateur clubs of St. Louis. In 1881 the Sportsman's Park and Club, of which Chris Von der Ahe was president, was organized, and securing a lease on these grounds, enlarged them, and they were made the home of the St. Louis Browns, which team represented St. Louis so long and well in the American Association.

"We did well in here; had nothing but luck," said Chris Von der Ahe, who watched Thursday's transformation scene, "but not satisfied, we moved and bad luck followed us. To me, at least, these grounds were always lucky, and I think they will prove lucky to any baseball team that occupies them.

"When I ran them I often took in more silver at that gate than you could carry.

"One year we cleared nearly $100,000, and the business was phenomenal, but for that matter we always did a good business in here."

For a long while after Chris Von der Ahe abandoned them these grounds laid idle. Then they were built up as a cycling park. It was a money loser for two years, and the stands and equipment were sold at Sheriff's sale last summer and bought in by George Schaefer, who, besides owning the fixtures, now has a long lease on the grounds.

"These grounds," said Dick Jarrett, St. Louis' premier football player, as he watched the men at work Thursday, "will be admirable for football purposes. The grand stand, as it is now, is properly located for that sort of sport and the turf is just the right kind to play football on."

George Schaefer, who was out superintending the work of clearing the field, said: "We will build a three-hundred foot addition to that grand stand and will put bleachers all around the grounds. The seating capacity will be in the neighborhood of 12,000."

The grounds now hold the record as a continuous playground. They have been occupied for that sort of thing continuously for over 40 years. No other baseball ground in America can boast as good a record as this. Since the '50s it has had but three names, Grand Avenue Park, Sportsman's Park and Athletic Park.

Despite the bad playing season in the National League and the one-sidedness of the races every club in that organization is said to have made money last season. Even the Cleveland Club, which was a wanderer from home most of the time, and which at home did no business at all, is said to have cleared money on the season. The estimated profits of each club on the season are given below:

Club.	Profit.
Philadelphia	$75,000
Boston	60,000
Brooklyn	50,000
St. Louis	50,000
Chicago	35,000
Cincinnati	20,000
Baltimore	15,000
Pittsburg	15,000
Louisville	12,000
New York	12,000
Washington	8,000
Cleveland

Bo Needham, the official scorer of the Detroit Baseball Club, attacked Manager Vanderbeck of that organization Thursday and broke his nose. Needham says that Vanderbeck refused to pay him the $300 due him for scoring the Detroit games this year and he has entered suit against Vanderbeck for that amount.

WILL PLAY IN CHICAGO.

Dahlen, Brooklyn's Crack Shortstop, to Join Anson's Team.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 20.—According to certain members of Brooklyn's champion team, "Sleepy Bill" Dahlen has finally decided to play ball in Chicago next season. It is said that he has already signed an agreement with Anson to play third base on the team which the "grand old man" expects to place in Chicago.

According to the terms of this contract, Dahlen's fat salary has been guaranteed by responsible men who are behind the Chicago end of the new league movement for next season's work, and by way of a climax to this story, it is said that Anson is now dickering with three other members of the Brooklyn team. The Brooklyns are in this city, playing a post-season series of games with the Phillies, and Dahlen, after putting up a remarkable game at short field this afternoon, was interviewed. He practically declined to talk for publication, and declined to either deny or affirm the story.

"Go and see Anson," he said, "I'm not talking baseball. Perhaps the captain will give you the story."

Despite his efforts to mislead the interviewers, it is a fact that Manager Ned Hanlon does not like the outlook. He has tried to sign the best men in his team for next season, but thus far his efforts have been in vain. The men are either holding off for big money or have entered into some sort of an agreement with the promoters of the new league. At any rate, they have thus far refused to consider, much less accept, the offers made by Hanlon.

Dahlen expects to start for his winter quarters in Chicago Friday night.

FUNERAL OF E. O. STANARD, JR.

It Will Take Place Saturday at Lindell Avenue M. E. Church.

The funeral of E. O. Stanard, Jr., son of ex-Gov. E. O. Stanard, will take place at the Stanard residence at 3629 Lindell boulevard, Saturday afternoon. The services will be performed by Rev. William Wirt King of the Lindell Avenue M. E. Church and Dr. Jesse Bowman Young, editor of the Central Christian Advocate.

Mr. Stanard died at Colorado Springs, where he had gone for his health. He had been seriously ill only since last Sunday. His mother, his brother Will and his sister were present when he died. They will arrive with the body Friday night.

The young man was well known in St. Louis. He was a graduate of Smith Academy and of Yale. He entered into business with his father, but his health failed and he went West. He located at Colorado Springs six years ago and had lived there since. During the recent cold snap he contracted a cold, which developed into pneumonia. He was 31 years old.

MEXICAN BOUNDARY LINE.

Commissioner in St. Louis Studying River Improvements.

Senor Jacobo Blanco, Mexican commissioner under the boundary treaty between the United States and Mexico, left St. Louis for Rock Island, Ill., Friday morning. The purpose of his visit here was to gather information with regard to the methods employed in improving the Missouri and Mississippi Rivers with a view to applying the knowledge in keeping the Rio Grande within its banks.

The frequent shifting of the channel of the Rio Grande is one of the most serious obstacles in the way of fixing the boundary line between the United States and Mexico. From Rock Island Senor Blanco will go to St. Paul. Then he will return and make trips to New Orleans and to Kansas City, with St. Louis as a starting point.

FOUND UNCONSCIOUS IN BED.

An Old Man's Narrow Escape From Asphyxiation.

The leakage of gas was noticed for several days, but could not be located. Thursday morning the old man was found unconscious in his bed. The services of a physician were required to arouse him. The bartender, John Peach, was overcome while in the saloon and the three women complained of severe headaches. Employes of the gas company found a leak an inch long near the meter. The leaking pipe was removed.

TO THE GALLANT DEAD

FLORAL TRIBUTES FOR THE LATE CAPT. HENRY M. GUIBOR.

EX-CONFEDERATES AT FUNERAL

Services Over the Dead Artilleryman's Remains at St. Vincent's Church and Thence to Calvary.

The funeral of Capt. Henry Guibor, the famous ex-Confederate battery commander, who died Tuesday night at the Mullanphy Hospital, was held Friday morning from St. Vincent's Catholic Church, Ninth street and Park aveune, to Calvary Cemetery.

It was attended by many members of the ex-Confederates' Historical and Benevolent Society and the Veteran Volunteer Firemen's Association, to both of which organizations the dead man had belonged.

The funeral cortege formed at the home of Louis P. and William H. Bender, nephews of Capt. Guibor, at 1825 South Broadway. The body lay in state there from Thursday afternoon. It was viewed by hundreds of Capt. Guibor's associates of both war and peaceful times and many who had known him only by his reputation as a brave and gallant officer, called to pay their respects to his memory.

The casket in which the remains lay was of black material and severely plain in its design. Its only ornaments were plain silver handles and a silver plate upon which was engraved the name of the occupant, with the dates of his birth and death. The top of the casket was hidden with flowers which had been presented by admiring friends. A large laurel wreath bearing the Confederate and Missouri flags in miniature, was presented by Capt. Frank Gaiennie. A. A. Capestro sent a bouquet of white roses arranged in handsome design.

The contribution of the Daughters of the Confederacy was a bouquet of white roses and chrysanthemums. A card accompanying it bore the inscription:

"From the St. Louis Daughters of the Confederacy to the Brave and Honored Confederate Soldier, Capt. Henry Guibor."

Before the body was placed in the hearse to be conveyed to the church, it was blessed by Rev. A. Asmuth. It was then taken to the church with the following pallbearers in charge:

Capt. Frank Gaiennie, Michael McMann and Capt. Joseph Boyce, representing the ex-Confederates' Historical and Benevolent Society, and Lewis L. Flotron, John R. Slevin and Louis Seidltun, representing the Veteran Volunteer Firemen's Association.

Following immediately behind the hearse were the members of the two organizations. The carriages, containing relatives and friends, were in the rear.

The requiem was chanted by Father Asmuth. Father Huber, priest of St. Vincent's Parish, preached the sermon, in which he extolled the virtues of the dead man and spoke of him as one who had always done his duty nobly, whether on the battlefield or in the more peaceful walks of life.

The sermon concluded, the cortege reformed and proceeded to Calvary Cemetery, where the remains were interred. The grave was covered with flowers.

Among the prominent ex-Confederate soldiers who attended the funeral were the following: Col. Celsus Price, son of Gen. Sterling Price, under whose command Capt. Guibor served; Capt. Frank Gaiennie, Capt. Joseph Boyce, Michael McMann, Jessie Joplin, E. J. Styles, Major John H. Mellin, Judge P. O'Connell, P. Wilson, C. E. Wells, John K. Pim, F. W. Valle, James J. Forbes, Capt. Frank M. Brooks, Major James Bannerman, Capt. Sam W. Winter, John W. Howard, C. E. Wells, George B. Thompson, James Clemens, John Corkery, Charles Mueth, Constant Richard, R. R. Sovereign, Ben Von Phul, Marcus Bernheimer, John Kelley, Capt. E. P. Creicy, A. A. Capestro, John Bull, William Bull, Dr. John J. Leavy, Dr. Le Grande Atwood, Phil Chew and C. B. Tilden.

PRICE OF GAS PIPE GONE UP

Remarkable Increase Due, Mr. N. O. Nelson Says, to Inadequate Manufacturing Facilities.

The man who laid in a supply of gaspipe sufficient for all his needs last fall, was wise beyond his generation. His gaspipe cost him 100 per cent less than it would have cost him now.

In one year the price of gaspipe has advanced over 100 per cent. It is still going up and no man may say where it will stop.

In explanation of the rise, Mr. N. O. Nelson said to the Post-Dispatch Friday:

"The price of gaspipe has gone up because the demand has exceeded the supply. The volume of business is almost double what it was a year ago. There have been no mills erected since before 1893. There has been no increase of facilities to keep pace with the increase of demand.

"There has been a combination, but most of the increase took place before the combination was formed. There is no limiting of production. The plants are being worked to their full capacity. They simply cannot put out enough gaspipe to meet the demand. The price of pigiron has also gone up."

THE MARKETS.

MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Oct. 20.

The market shows a stronger bearish feeling to-day than it has manifested for some time past.

The gains which the bulls made yesterday were quickly overcome, and the market sunk to a figure which it has not reached before in weeks.

After the first two jumps had been made by the bears they were content to let well enough alone, and thereafter till near the middle of the session, the deals showed no change in prices.

There was no great degree of interest shown by the pit in these early fluctuations, and what little was felt was quickly lost again.

The Weather—Unsettled, but probably fair to-night and Saturday.

The barometer is highest over the Lake region and lowest over the extreme Northwest.

Rainfall occurred in the Lower Lake region, Ohio Valley, Southeast and the North Pacific Coast.

The temperature, as a rule, has risen.

WHEAT.

The bears were in the pit to-day in full force, determined to regain the ground lost yesterday to the bulls. With this aim in view they were able at the opening of to-day's session to cause quite a slump in prices and for the time being create more excitement in the pit than has been shown for days.

The bulls at first held off, uncertain as to what would be the best to do, but later they gained more confidence and the futures began to rise by small fractions until the market was well up to some of the figures made yesterday.

Here the advance stopped and for a long time there was no change; later the market made more fluctuations, but all through it was of a most uncertain character, as first one faction would be in control and then the other would gain the ascendancy.

There was little trading done in the early hours, the pit mostly bidding against the puts.

The grain centers of the Northwest showed an average receipt, though but little above half those of last year.

Dec. opened at 70⅛c, a loss of 7-16c since yesterday's close. In one minute after the opening 70c was reached, fulfilling the prophesy made in Sunday's Post-Dispatch that the market would go to 70c before the week closed.

After this bearish opening a rise followed, the market going to 70⅛c, the opening, and then to 70⅛@70¼c, and later to 70¼c, where the advance stopped.

May, in strong contrast to the December future, in the early part of the session, made its changes in the opposite direction. Instead of being strongly bearish, it received the support of the bull element to such an extent that it was able to make some substantial gains, though later the interest that was for a few minutes excited died out.

May opened at 75c, being ⅛c below yesterday's close, and soon made an advance, going to 75⅛c, but here the advance stopped suddenly, and it was not till late that this future showed any change.

The tone of the foreign markets was decidedly bearish to-day, and this naturally was one of the chief reasons why the markets of this country made low openings and later dropped off a little more.

Liverpool opened ¼d lower for wheat, while London was ¼d lower at the opening of to-day's session. Paris was unchanged for both wheat and flour.

Argentine shipments of wheat this week, 856,000 bu; last week, 1,248,000 bu; last year, none.

Danubian shipments this week, 382,000 bu; last week, 224,000 bu; last year, 1,320,000 bu.

A wire from Chicago said:

"The seaboard reported an easier tone in the ocean freight situation, and shippers here said rates were not quotably lower, but that shippers were practically out of the market. Some New York messages quoted ocean freights off a full penny from the top. There are those who believe that a very considerable break might occur at any time, in which case the grain markets would be appreciably affected. The advance in transportation cost has been the most important bear influence for a fortnight, and a reduction in this cost would give the bulls much comfort.

"The Dec.-May wheat spread got to 3⅝@3¾c yesterday and was 3⅝c at close. The expectation is that it will be over 4c before the week is over.

"There have been mysterious tips in the wheat pit for two days that Dec. was a purchase at 70⅛c. All the outside markets seemed to have it yesterday from some source. Both Minneapolis and Milwaukee wiring here that such advice was out. It is of the flippancy referred to by the wheat scalpers as 'dope.'"

Wm. A. Rooke's Chicago Morning Letter:

"Cables at 1:30 were ¼d lower for wheat. The tone acts very weak across the water, but the reported easier ocean freight may have something to do with it, the stubbornness of the market last few days was caused in part, we think, by buying against weekly puts, of which there is a large line out. Conditions continue bearish, as we see them."

Receipts of wheat at primary points to-day were 992,398 bu, as compared with 1,382,000 bu same date last year.

Shipments, 175,798 bu, compared with 936,000 bu same date last year.

Receipts of wheat at St. Louis to-day were 26,907 bu, compared with 96,208 bu same date last year. Of these 2292 sacks and 24 cars were local, compared with 5737 sacks and 74 cars same date last year.

Receipts of wheat at Minneapolis and Duluth to-day were 640 cars, compared with 1190 cars same date last year.

Outlook of the Modern Miller:

Millers have not freely met the decline in wheat, and the flour trade is therefore somewhat restricted. However, sales from second hands have been fair. Pacific coast markets report the best trade, Cape Town and South and Central American markets being large buyers.

Rains have somewhat improved the growing winter wheat situation, but the Southwestern drouth is not entirely broken. Wheat receipts at country points are liberal.

CORN.

The market was very lively in the early part of to-day's session, the bulls causing a steady advance in prices.

The receipts at the local market were very small to-day, and this was a factor in overcoming the effect that lower foreign cables otherwise would have had.

December opened at 29¼c, and soon advanced to 29⅝c, where, although the trade stood still, the interest shown by the pit did not entirely fall off, 29⅝@29¾c was bid, but this was refused.

May opened at 30⅝c, an advance of ⅛c since yesterday's close.

Argentine corn shipments this week, 1,384,000 bu; last week, 1,552,000 by; last year, 856,000 bu.

Danubian shipments this week, 48,000 bu; last week, 336,000 bu; last year, 336,000 bu.

Foreign markets were slightly lower to-day, Liverpool opening ¼d lower, while London was also ¼d at the opening.

Receipts of corn at primary points to-day were 516,455 bu, as compared with 576,000 bu same date last year.

Shipments, 719,052 bu, as compared with 579,000 bu same date last year.

Receipts of corn at St. Louis to-day were 53,170 bu, compared with 60,295 bu same date last year. Of these 148 sacks and 42 cars were local, compared with 418 sacks and 41 cars same date last year.

By Wire to J. W. Sanford, from J. F. Harris.

The day of very cheap corn has passed. The very cheap corn heretofore was made by the flood of corn from the territory west of the Missouri River. The farmers of Nebraska and Kansas have now as much money as those of Massachusetts or New York. There is no necessity of their sacrificing their grain and they will not do it, unless they can secure 20c or better. Corn will not be sold by them in large quantities. Iowa, Missouri or Illinois will not sell, or at least never have, except at reasonable prices. The export demand is large and will likely continue so.

We probably will export this year 300,000,000 bu. The reserves of old corn are as nearly exhausted as they ever become in a corn producing country. We believe purchases at present prices will show handsome profit.

OATS.

The pit did not change the course that it has been pursuing of late, the futures in oats were sadly neglected during to-day's session, neither one receiving much attention even in the way of bid or selling prices.

December in the early part of the session was not favored by the attention of the pit in any way, the opening being long put off.

May had a bid of 25c, but at this figure the pit refused to trade.

Receipts of oats at St. Louis to-day were 25,200 bu, compared with 30,000 bu same date last year. Of these 21 cars were local, compared with 12 sacks and 13 cars same date last year.

News of the Pit.

By Wire to Arthur C. Petri.

Good deal of selling early by commission houses. Rather dull now, but firm, strength in corn probably helping it some, as well as the support of puts, weekly and daily.

Foreigners are selling wheat here.

Local scalpers are loaded with corn and around 32c for May 1. Would sooner sell than buy.

Wheat market heavy; looks like going lower.

By wire to J. W. Sandford.

There was some selling of May wheat this morning, the first in some time.

Liverpool—The decline in Liverpool was largely due to the very poor demand from millers and grain dealers, owing to their being well stocked up. Corn eased off in sympathy.

In Northwest stocks probably increase 1,500,000 bu, and Chicago 750,000 bu. Looks like 2,000,000 bu increase in our visible against 250,000 last year.

MARKETS BY TELEGRAPH.

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—Wheat suffered another setback to-day. Lower cables, liberal Argentine shipments and poor spot demand proved too heavy a weight for the market to carry in its present state, and it took but little pressure on the part of the bears to succeed in their chase after lower prices. The market was under put figure most of the time, with most of the demand against these privileges. December opened ⅛c lower, at 70⅛c, declined to 70⅛, and rose to 70¼@70⅜c. Chicago received 154 cars, 2 of which graded contract. Minneapolis and Duluth got over 640 cars, compared with 1190 for the corresponding day a year ago. Argentine shipments during the week were 1,020,000 bu.

Corn got a weak start owing to the break in wheat, but generous buying, induced by moderate receipts and a good shipping demand, caused an upturn. Receipts, 519 cars.

Corn—Receipts, 519 cars. December opened a shade lower, at 30½c, declined to 30⅜c, and rose to 30⅝c.

Oats ruled dull and easy, with free selling by elevator interest. Receipts exceeded estimates, amounting to 246 cars. December ruled a shade lower, at 22½@22⅝c.

Diminishing hog receipts and a good cash demand strengthened provisions. Trade was active. January pork opened a shade lower, at $9.30, and rose to $9.35. January lard and ribs unchanged, at $5.30@5.32½, and $4.87½, respectively.

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—Butter dull, but steady; creameries, 15@22c; dairies, 13½@19c. Eggs steady; fresh, 16½c. Dressed poultry firm; turkeys, 10@10½c; spring chickens, 9½c; hens, 8½c; ducks, 8@8½c.

Wall Street.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Glucose dropped 6½ at the opening on an Illinois decision adverse to the legality of the organization. The majority of stocks yielded a shade, but there were important exceptions on the side of gains. Pullman and Third Avenue rose 1½ each. Otherwise changes were confined to small fractions.

Trading in railroad shares was small, but prices were a little lower in sympathy with general weakness in the industrial division. Glucose recovered 3½, but soon lost most of the rise. Marked weakness was also shown by Sugar, Brooklyn Transit, Tin Plate, Consolidated Gas, Steel Hoop, Union Bag and National Biscuit. The last named lost 2½, and the others averaged a point. Sugar and Brooklyn Transit rallied a point and Pullman rose 6½. The market fell into dullness.

The covering movement in Brooklyn Transit and Sugar was followed by a bidding up of the Vanderbilts. New York Central and Illinois Central and Northwestern rose from 1 to 1¾. Pullman extended its gain to 9¼. The grangers and Pacifics improved fractionally. Sales of stocks to noon, 188,826 shares.

There was little business in bonds, but the market ruled steady.

Straight Talk About Clothing Guarantees

Seeming guarantees are plentiful nowadays—it's so easy to say "money back if you want it"—but take the clothes back to most stores and you meet with a "merry ha ha" that shakes your confidence in human nature. At Famous it's different—we not only talk fair but we earnestly strive to act fair. We guarantee every article that leaves this store to be thoroughly satisfactory in every respect—because we know the goods will stand it. First and last—Famous Suits and Overcoats for men and boys are the highest standard of ready-to-wear garments on the American Continent to-day—not because we say so, but we make it so. Ask any of the biggest wholesale tailors in the land and they'll tell you that Famous insists on an excellence of workmanship, fabric and trimming that is exacted by but few concerns in this country—and by buying in immense quanties for spot cash, we get what we want, and at prices that enable us to save our patrons many dollars during the course of the year.

These are important facts. Think them over and remember when you buy at Famous you are buying at the store that gives the biggest value for your money and whose guarantee means exactly what it says. Note Saturday's offerings.

Men's Overcoats

There's Style and snap to the topcoats and overcoats we offer at $7.50. ARE KEEPING IT DARK

OFFICIAL REPORT ON EFFECT OF CHICAGO'S STATE SEWER.

WILL BE SHOWN TO THE COURT.

Strong Conclusions by the City Chemist and City Bacteriologist, With the Health Commissioner's Opinions.

Health Commissioner Starkloff's report on the Chicago Drainage Canal project, showing the probable effect on the health of St. Louis if the plan to build the canal is carried out, will be used as the basis for an injunction suit against the City of Chicago.

This suit will be filed in the Federal Court in Chicago by City Counselor Schnurmacher. That much has been decided on. Just when the suit will be filed has not yet been determined, but it will be some time next month.

The report is regarded as most important; so important that it is being withheld from the public, lest its contents might give Chicago a line on the grounds for prosecuting St. Louis' case.

The report contains a complete analysis of the prospective situation should the canal be completed, with the result of biological and bacteriological researches by Dr. Starkloff and his subordinates.

Both City Counselor Schnurmacher and Health Commissioner Starkloff are highly pleased with it and believe it can be made the basis of a very strong case in behalf of St. Louis. Besides the scientific conclusions reached by the city's chemists and bacteriologists the document includes a number of conclusions drawn by Dr. Starkloff in his capacity of physician and health officer.

The report is now in the hands of the City Counselor, who is guarding it jealously. He is preparing his brief to be submitted to the Federal Court. It is expected that a temporary injunction will first be granted, after which arguments will be heard. In the event of an adverse decision the case will then be carried to the United States Supreme Court.

The document includes reports by City Chemist Teichmann and City Bacteriologist Ravold, who made the necessary experiments under the direction of Dr. Starkloff.

The Health Commissioner said to the Post-Dispatch:

"The report is most important. I should like to give it out, but I have been advised by the City Counselor not to do so. He fears a publication of it at this time might result in showing Chicago our hand. No characterization of the report could be made without divulging the nature of its contents. It is thoroughly scientific and every possible correct conclusion has been drawn. It includes my own personal conclusions and corallaries, as well as those of the chemists, biologists and bacteriologists who aided me in preparing it. It will not be made public until the case comes up, some time in November."

COUSINS AND DIVINELY TALL

Gen. Miles' Daughter and Lieutenant-Colonel Samuel Reber of St. Louis Shortly to Be Married.

The engagement of Miss Cella Sherman Miles, daughter of Maj.-Gen. Nelson A. Miles, to Lieutenant-Colonel Samuel Reber of St. Louis is announced.

Col. Reber, through his mother, is a cousin of his fiancee. Mrs. Reber was a Miss Reece of Ohio and is a first cousin of the Shermans, and consequently nearly related to Mrs. Miles, who was a Sherman before her marriage.

Col. Reber has known Miss Miles for many years. He has been a frequent visitor to Washington. He and Miss Miles are both devoted to horseback riding.

Col. Reber is nearly 6 feet 2 inches tall and well built. He is a blonde, with somewhat florid coloring. He is about 35 years old, and has been in the service since 1884. He is at present stationed at Governor's Island.

Miss Miles is "divinely tall, as well as divinely fair." She is about 5 feet 9 inches, with a well-rounded figure. She is fond of athletic sports and excels in all. She is about 22.

Col. Reber has no fortune and Miss Miles will inherit but a small one.

One Dealer's Wail.

A prominent St. Louis shoe dealer said to-day:

"Only last week a woman was in for rubber heels—left her shoes—my cobbler attached a pair—and the next day my lady grew red in the face because they didn't happen to be O'Sullivan's.

"But madam, you did not say O'Sullivan's.'

"'Even if I didn't,' she retorted, 'you ought to have known I meant it, instead of substituting something else I didn't ask for.'

"Now what is a poor man going to do in such cases?"

Such experiences frequently come to our notice. This case is a trifle provoking, but a possible remedy would be to put on O'Sullivan's first and see how that works.

WOMEN ON A NOBLE MISSION

Two noble women of St. Louis, Mother Mary Xavier and Sister Mary Veronica of the Order of Mercy, have gone to devote their lives to the care of the sick at the quarantine hospital in Springfield, Mo.

They left St. Louis Oct. 15, and will remain as long as there is need for nurses at the Springfield hospital.

Mr. Guy Billon Will Shortly Wed Miss Naomi Peterson.

The engagement of Miss Naomi Peterson to Mr. Guy Billon was announced Wednesday afternoon at a luncheon given in the former's honor by Mrs. Samuel Gaylord, who is Mr. Billon's mother.

The wedding is to take place quietly on the morning of Nov. 7, at the Gaylord residence, 3963 Washington boulevard.

The bride-elect is the daughter of the late Alfred Peterson of St. Louis, and Mr. Billon is a member of one of the oldest families in the city. Miss Peterson and her mother were also passing the season in the suburbs, but not with the Gaylords, as has been stated. The engagement has existed three months.

PRINCE OF EXPERT CRIMINALS.

Charles Lohman Under Arrest on General Principles.

Charles Lohman, reported to be one of the oldest professional criminals in the country, and who was in his day among the most successful and daring, was arrested at Fourth and Pine streets Thursday on general principles.

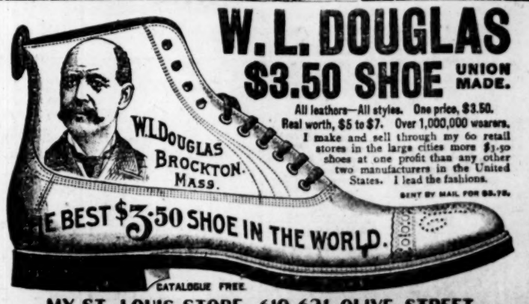

Lohman is 61 years old and has spent nearly two-thirds of his life in prison.

The police say he once fleeced a Treasurer of Missouri by giving that official a tip on an alleged plot to blow open the safe in the Treasurer's office. On another occasion he is said to have confidenced a St. Louis pawnbroker by telling him that he had $15,000 in the keeping of a priest. The broker advanced the money Lohman wanted and later found that the story of the $15,000 was untrue.

Lohman will be held to see if he is wanted in any other city. There is no charge against him here.
